Job families

Classifying jobs into families allows the Organisation to determine whether it has the capabilities necessary to achieve maximum impact and to locate where those capabilities are found. Job families can be used to set job requirements at the corporate level for similar jobs, to view potential matches and bridges for in-house mobility, to provide corporate learning opportunities, and to design structured career development programmes.

At the OECD, each job falls under one of the three job families: Executive Leadership, Policy Research, Analysis and Advice, and Corporate Management and Administration.

Executive Leadership

Jobs in this family involve designing, leading and steering the OECD and its staff members to achieve strategic objectives.

Typical jobs in this family include Director, Deputy Director, Head of Division and Counsellor.

Policy Research, Analysis, and Advice

Jobs in this family are directly involved in policy analysis which produces key outputs that support the OECD in achieving its strategic objectives.

Typical jobs in this family include Economists, Policy Analysts and Statisticians.

Corporate Management and Administration

Jobs in this family manage the OECD’s corporate activities in support of the efficient and effective production and dissemination of its output. Jobs in this family are grouped together under the following categories:

- Communication (e.g. Communication Assistants, Marketing Managers)
- Finance (e.g. Finance Assistants, Finance Managers)
- General Management & Administration (e.g. Secretaries/Assistants, Resource Management Advisers)
- Human Resources (e.g. HR Officers, HR Advisers)
- Information Technology (e.g. IT Assistants, Application Analysts)
- Language Services (e.g. Translators and Interpreters)
- Legal Functions (e.g. Lawyers)
- Site Services and Operations (e.g. Logistics Officers, Documentalists and Security Managers)
Technical Competencies

Specific competencies are usually required to perform a given job within a job family. These are known as technical competencies. Technical competencies cover the various fields of expertise relevant to the specific work carried out at the OECD. Technical competencies are at the heart of what we do.

Technical competency requirements to successfully perform a given job are defined in job vacancy announcements.

Core Competencies

The Core Competencies summarise the capabilities that are important across all jobs and that we believe collectively contribute to the OECD’s overall success. At the same time, the importance of Core Competencies may vary according to the specific job duties and requirements.

The OECD Competency Framework displays fifteen Core Competencies grouped into three clusters.

- The blue cluster groups the delivery-related competencies
- The purple groups interpersonal competencies
- The green cluster relates to strategic competencies

Definitions

Delivery-related – Achieving Results

Analytical Thinking is the ability to identify patterns across situations that are not obviously related, and to identify key or underlying issues in complex situations.

Achievement Focus is generating results by assuming responsibility for one’s performance and the correctness of one’s interventions, and recognising opportunities and acting efficiently at the appropriate moment and within the given deadlines.

Drafting Skills are based on the ability to respectfully communicate ideas and information (often technical) in writing to ensure that information and messages are understood and have the desired impact.

Flexible Thinking involves the ability to effectively adapt to a variety of situations, individuals or groups. It is based on the ability to understand and appreciate different and opposing perspectives on an issue, to adapt an approach as the requirements of a situation change, and to change or easily accept changes in one’s own organisational or job requirements.

Managing Resources is about understanding human, financial, and operational resource issues to make decisions aimed at building and planning efficient project workflows, and at improving overall organisational performance.

Teamwork and Team Leadership implies working co-operatively with others, being a part of a team, and assuming the role of leader of a team. In the OECD, people work not only with their own teams but also with teams and groups across and outside the Organisation. Therefore they need to work together effectively with interdependent goals and common values and norms to foster a collaborative environment and drive teams in the same direction.
Definitions

Interpersonal – Building Relationships

Client Focus is based on the ability to understand internal/external clients’ (e.g. Committees, working groups, country representatives, etc.,) needs and concerns in the short to long-term and to provide sound recommendations and/or solutions.

Diplomatic Sensitivity implies understanding other people. It includes the ability to hear accurately and understand unspoken, partly expressed thoughts, feelings and concerns of others. Included in this competency is an emphasis on cross-cultural sensitivity. Proficiency in Diplomatic Sensitivity requires the ability to keep one’s emotions under control and restrain negative actions when faced with opposition or hostility from others or when working under stress.

Influencing implies an intention to convince others in an honest, respectful and sensitive manner in order to get them to go along with one’s objectives. It can also be the desire to have a specific impact or effect on others.

Negotiating involves the ability to work towards win-win outcomes. At lower levels, this competency assumes an understanding of one’s counterparts and how to respond to them during negotiations. At the higher levels, the competency reflects a focus to achieve value-added results.

Organisational Knowledge is the ability to understand the power relationships within the Organisation and with other organisations. It includes the ability to understand the formal rules and structures including the ability to identify who the real decision-makers are as well as the individuals who can influence them.

Strategic – Planning for the Future

Developing Talent means fostering an environment that will encourage professional and personal growth and the transfer of knowledge to future talent.

Organisational Alignment is the ability and willingness to align one’s own behaviour with the needs, priorities, and goals of the Organisation, and to act in ways that promote the Organisation’s goals or meet organisational needs. Organisational Alignment means focusing on the Organisation’s mission before one’s own preferences or professional priorities.

Strategic Networking involves working to build and maintain friendly, trustworthy and open internal and external relationships and networks with people who are, or might become, important actors in achieving strategic-related goals.

Strategic Thinking is the ability to develop a broad, big-picture view of the Organisation and its mission. Competitive advantage and threats, industry trends, emerging technology, market opportunities, stakeholder focus – Strategic Thinking is where these all come together. Strategic Thinking keeps individuals and groups focused and helps decide where to invest critical resources. It includes the ability to link long-range visions and concepts to daily work.
