OUTLINE

- OECD work on women entrepreneurship
- Local Economic and Employment development programme (LEED) work on women entrepreneurship
- The role of women entrepreneurs in local development
- Forthcoming seminar in Ljubljana, 9-10 December 2003
OECD work on Women entrepreneurship

- Budapest Workshop, September 2003
- Paris workshop on Statistics, September 2003
- SME Ministerial, June 2004, Istanbul
- Efforts of the organisation on gender mainstreaming

Rationale for action:
- Economic growth: untapped source
- Neglected topic for long because preference for gender neutral (gender-blind?) programmes
- Equity: given cultural, historic and social barriers

OECD recommendations from the December 2000 OECD conference “Women in SMEs”

- Improve the knowledge we have on women entrepreneurs
- Facilitate the financing of enterprises owned by women
- Favour the participation of women entrepreneurs in international trade
- Develop the culture of entrepreneurship

Economic rationale: Where does market fail women entrepreneurs?
- Demand side analyse (historical, cultural, social determined framework conditions)
- Supply side (women prior work experiences as potential entrepreneurs, access to resources and information, family policies)
LEED work on women entrepreneurship
LEED considers that the national approach is not sufficient: regions and cities are key to designing and implementing policies

LEED work on « The active role of women entrepreneurs in local development »

Women entrepreneurs and local development: summary

- Make the distinction between national programmes and local ones: a lot can be done at the sub-national level (municipality, city, region): programmes targeting precise problems
- Local economic dimension: what is the existing link between the local industrial structure and female employment/entrepreneurship: zones with strong male (mining, steel, car industries) or female (textile) dominating workforce
- Proximity dimension: role models, mentoring, stimulation, diffusion, networking, lobbying, partnerships
- Territorial dimension: local clusters of enterprises
- Social structural dimensions: existing schools, child-care facilities, training opportunities
- Human dimension: community building and trust
- Specific environment issues: women entrepreneurs in rural zones, under-populated periphery areas, difficult neighbourhoods, regions undergoing industrial restructuration
Objectives: what is there already, what is missing?

- Paint a coherent and comprehensive picture of the state of women's entrepreneurship in the country / region / municipality in question
- Ascertain the policies, programmes and projects that work in the country / region / municipality (and assess coordination of different levels)
- Explore the economic, social and cultural obstacles to the creation and expansion of women-created enterprises at the local level (childcare is a different issue in France and in Sweden, in cities and in rural areas)
- Identify local and international good practices for dissemination to policymakers: give visibility to existing initiatives
- Affirm the dynamic of territorial development by exploiting the role of women as creators of businesses, jobs and social cohesion.
- Examine national practices from an international perspective and give them a comparative dimension.
- Secure the involvement of a unique network of experts from different organisations
- Propose specific recommendations and an action plan with policies alternatives

Work stages

- Work with local consultant: Collection and analysis of existing information and statistics, determination of missing data and database.
- Selection and organisation of the group of international experts
- Field work during a week-long mission, with involvement of the network of high-level partners
- Preparation of the report: Comparisons of international experience with national or sub-national case studies; Exploitation of the good practices uncovered for each case study.
- The review may incorporate an evaluation of one or more existing programmes for women entrepreneurs
- Formulation of customised and concrete policy recommendations; roadmaps for national / regional / municipal / local public action.
- Seminar to disseminate conclusions.
- LEED Programme publication: general report comparing a number of case studies, summaries and recommendations.
- Possibility to organise a comparative international conference
Topics

- Policies and programmes to foster women’s entrepreneurship
- Statistics on women’s entrepreneurship (General statistics on entrepreneurship and employment, quantitative and qualitative, overall territorial entrepreneurial dynamic, women in co-entrepreneurship and family entrepreneurship)
- The place of women in the economic, social, political and cultural environment (policies to promote equal opportunity; women’s representation in national, regional and local bodies, and in high-paid managerial jobs, factors that affect gender and that affect entrepreneurship)
- Enrich the definition of entrepreneurship (new frameworks discussing values and family barriers)
- Education, training and support structures at the local level
  - access to technologies, curricula, language courses, presence of women in so-called “men’s” professions
  - Post-academic training and availability of training courses nearby (LEED database)
  - Tutoring systems and means for promoting successful models.
  - Parallel structures at the local level: reconciliation of careers and family life and control over professional and private time.
  - Support structures for women entrepreneurs: new business incubators, facilitation of home ownership, housing, transport services.
  - Structures at the local level: associations specialised in a local industrial sector, enterprise networks and clusters, exploitation of neighbourhood social capital.
  - Virtual communities: Internet access, international outreach.
Local sources of financing

- Access to conventional bank loans (existence of women-friendly banking programmes: Bank of Ireland, West Pac; Bank of Australia, Royal bank of Canada)
- Government loans for women entrepreneurs
- Private loans for women entrepreneurs: from micro-loans to venture capital, including social funds, family funds, start-up and expansion funds, solidarity funds and insurance.
- Steps in the financing of entrepreneurship: start-up loans
Social and community development

- solidarity financing, collective guarantees, enterprises for economic and social cohesion purposes.
- social economy enterprises, environmental enterprises, ethical enterprises, new forms of management.
- Local development: participation of women entrepreneurs in the forging of social and community ties through associations and local networks.
- Local partnerships in support of women entrepreneurs.
● Territories with particular characteristics

- Enterprise creation by women in rural areas (agrotourism activities, networking): WIRE, ALLIANCE
- Enterprise creation by women in urban areas and in distressed neighbourhoods: London, Seoul, Barcelona, Chicago
- Distressed areas: outlying areas, areas in industrial decline or industrial restructuring (former auto-making, textile and mining regions) Leipzig, Baden Württemberg

● Sub-groups of women with special needs

- Activities in the informal and underground economies.
- Minorities, native populations and capitalisation of the role of women entrepreneurs (Black Women Business Network UK)
- Migration and the role of women at the local level (Chinese diasporas)
- Entrepreneurship as an aid to emerging from poverty, self-employment, personal fulfilment, entrepreneurship for expansion and growth.
- Particular age groups: young people or those at the end of their careers.
Forthcoming Seminar
