How can countries strengthen their measures to tackle industrial pollution?

By measuring the effectiveness of their Best Available Techniques (BAT) policies - comparing emission trends before and after their introduction using:

- Emission data from Pollutant Release and Transfer Registers (PRTRs) or other emissions monitoring systems
- Data on industrial production and/or consumption volumes
- Information on the environmental permit conditions of industrial installations
- Information on installed pollution prevention and control techniques