Flows for Development - Recipient and provider perspectives

A snapshot

1. How much was allocated to a specific country for development activities?
   - Recipient perspective = A + C
   - Provider perspective = A + B

In detail

1. Recipient perspective
   - Activities in recipient countries: Core contributions from provider countries (i.e. unearmarked funds)
   - Core contributions from provider countries (i.e. unearmarked funds)

2. Provider perspective
   - Activities in recipient countries: Core contributions from DAC members and non-DAC countries, but also through funds raised from the private sector, including international capital markets.
   - (include earmarked contributions to NGO and NGO)

C.
   - Activities in recipient countries
   - (exclude earmarked contributions, as already reported in A)

Double counting

* = implementing entity/partner (channel of delivery). Funds going through the implementing partner are earmarked by the provider country - i.e. funds are allocated for specific purposes. A or C can be implementing partners. Other examples of implementing partners are recipient country governments, Development Finance Institutions (DFIs) and PPPs.

* Core contributions relate to funds paid over to multilateral institutions and NGOs for use at their discretion. Earmarked (non-core) contributions are included in the blue arrow.
