Terrorism, corruption and the criminal exploitation of natural resources
Terrorists use corruption to both finance and perpetrate terrorism. This brochure looks at the links between corruption and terrorism and outlines how the OECD can help the international community respond to this threat. It proposes a basis for reflection and discussion among countries determined to stamp out terrorism.

Implementation and enforcement of the Anti-Bribery Convention
Statements concerning the lack of implementation of the Anti-Bribery Convention in Belgium, Finland and Slovenia have been issued by the OECD Working Group on Bribery. These countries are encouraged to undertake the recommended reforms and to persevere in their enforcement of the offence of bribery of foreign public officials.

Joint government interpretation of investment treaties
Most investment treaties do not expressly address joint interpretations and thus leave the issue to more general rules. This article addresses the general legal framework applicable to joint agreements by treaty parties about the interpretation of treaties. It outlines key concepts and distinctions, and considers effects on third parties.

Responsible supply chains in the garment and footwear sector
Currently available for public comment, this draft guidance will help enterprises in the garment and footwear sector to identify, mitigate and account for how they address actual and potential adverse impacts in their supply chains. It is a contribution to the implementation of the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises.

Broadening the ownership of state-owned enterprises
The state continues to remain an important shareholder in listed companies worldwide, especially among emerging economies which rely increasingly on mixed-ownership models. This book provides fresh perspectives on the motivation to list SOEs and draws from the experiences of China, India, New Zealand, Poland and Turkey.

Investment, Investment, Investment
How can governments encourage international investment and maximise the potential benefits? This collection of expert opinions looks at the issues facing investment in particular sectors, the institutional frameworks that govern international financial flows, and the policy options that will allow investment to support better lives for all.
