Antitrust Compliance and Corporate Governance
Thursday, 26 January 2017, 9h00 – 13h00
Lotte Hotel, 8 bld.2, Novinskiy Blvd., Moscow

By taking action to prevent anticompetitive practices and violations of antitrust law, corporations are contributing to boosting investment through building trust among investors. Companies can achieve a high level of compliance with competition law and regulations through the development of well-functioning and appropriate policies, mechanisms and incentives, which, together with the overall effectiveness of corporate governance, enhance long-term growth and sustainability.

The seminar Antitrust Compliance and Corporate Governance, organised by the OECD in partnership with Deloitte CIS and with the funding of Siemens Integrity Initiative, will focus on how companies can enhance compliance with competition law through corporate governance measures. Building on OECD expertise in the field, the discussions will outline some of the key risk areas related to competition and ways to address them within corporations. Special attention will be drawn on the work carried out by the Federal Antimonopoly Service, current tendencies in competition law compliance in Russia and the implications for companies of implementing compliance procedures. The seminar will also provide an opportunity to share knowledge about the concrete measures in competition compliance within Russian companies. The discussions will be supported by expert speakers from the OECD, Deloitte CIS, the Federal Antimonopoly Service of the Russian Federation and local corporations. Simultaneous interpretation will be provided at the seminar.
