

Dr. De Negri is currently Vice President and Director of Sectorial Policies and Studies at IPEA (the Instituto de Pesquisa Economica Aplicada), a public foundation linked to the Brazilian Government which provides technical and institutional support to public policy making and development programmes in Brazil. He has done extensive research in the area of technological innovation, international economics, and industrial development and has authored numerous articles and working papers. He also recently edited the IPEA publication “Technological Innovation in Brazilian and Argentine Firms”. Dr. De Negri received his PhD in Economics from the University of Brasilia.