

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of Abbreviations	11
Assessment and Recommendations	15
CHAPTER 1. KEY TRENDS: STRONG ECONOMIC GROWTH BUT INSUFFICIENT JOB CREATION	33
1. A favourable macroeconomic environment.....	34
2. Chile has large human resources that are not well utilised	35
Women and youth face difficulties in entering the labour market	39
3. Job creation in low-productivity sectors	42
4. The quality of jobs	44
Sub-contracting and worker dispatching	44
The role of informal employment	44
5. Significant improvements in health, education and housing	49
6. Poverty has been much reduced, but the income distribution remains very unequal.....	53
7. Income inequality in Chile is closely linked with wage inequality	57
8. Regional diversity	59
9. Conclusions.....	60
Annex 1.A1. Measurement Issues on Income Distribution	61
Bibliography	63
CHAPTER 2. TOWARDS MORE EQUAL JOB OPPORTUNITIES.....	65
1. Introduction.....	66
2. Important issues of labour legislation have yet to be resolved	67
Employment protection legislation (EPL)	67
Sub-contracting and temporary-work agencies (TWAs)	71
Working time	74
3. Industrial relations and collective bargaining	75
The minimum wage is relatively high	78
4. Labour taxation and informal employment.....	80
5. The Labour Inspectorate (Dirección del Trabajo , DT) and labour courts	82
6. An atypical unemployment insurance programme (UI)	84
7. The public employment service	90
Active labour market programmes (ALMPs) are relatively insignificant	91

8.	Job-related training and life-long learning.....	92
	Strengthen SENCE’s controls and speed up the development of skill certifications	94
9.	Special issues concerning employment of women	95
10.	Conclusions.....	97
	Annex 2.A1. The Presidential Advisory Commission “Work and Equity”	99
	Annex 2.A2. Measuring Employment Protection Legislation (EPL) by the OECD scoring method.....	100
	Bibliography	102
CHAPTER 3. REDUCING POVERTY IN THE WORKING-AGE POPULATION...		105
1.	Introduction.....	106
2.	Social policy	109
	Overall spending and redistributive effect	109
	Education, health and housing policies	114
	An integrated approach towards supporting the poor: Chile Solidario	121
3.	Conclusions.....	136
	Bibliography	138
CHAPTER 4. THE NORMALISATION OF CHILE’S PENSION SYSTEM		143
1.	Introduction.....	144
2.	The Chilean pension system	145
	Poverty among elderly and redistribution of pension spending	150
	The basic solidarity fund	151
	The mandatory private pension system	154
	Disability and survivor coverage: reduce cost-shifting while maintaining efficiency	164
3.	Conclusions.....	169
	Annex 4.A1. Background Data to Chile’s Private Pension System.....	171
	Annex 4.A2. The Chilean Pension Market: Competition, Individual Choice and Financial Risk Management	173
	Bibliography	180

List of Tables

Table 1.1. Employment/population ratios by gender for selected working-age groups in OECD and accession countries in 2006.....	37
Table 1.2. Labour force status of the Chilean population, 1996-2007	38
Table 1.3. Youths in 2006: unemployment, labour force participation and the proportion who neither study nor work.....	40
Table 1.4. Profile of women between 25-64 years old by per capita income quintiles, 2006	41
Table 1.5. Employed persons by economic sector in 1996-2007	42
Table 1.6. Employment by economic sector in Chile and OECD countries, 2007	43
Table 1.7. Relative wages in selected economic sectors	43
Table 1.8. Activity rate, informality and earnings in the 25-64 population by education, 2006	47
Table 1.9. Housing conditions in 1990 and 2006	52
Table 1.10. Poverty trends	54
Table 1.11. Poverty and inequality indicators, mid-2000s	55
Table 1.12. Distribution of household market income	57
Table 1.13. Distribution indices for wages and other household market income, 2006 ..	59
Table 1.14. Regional differences, 2006	60
Table 1.A.1. Comparing data on income distribution	62
Table 2.1. Incidence of fixed-term and other temporary labour contracts in 2006	71
Table 2.2. Employed persons by effective working time	74
Table 2.3. Trade union membership in 2007	76
Table 2.4. Wage adjustments resulting from collective agreements	77
Table 2.5. Labour inspections	82
Table 2.6. UI benefits in June 2008	89
Table 3.1. Poverty and its severity has fallen since 1990	106
Table 3.2. Public spending on education and health is the most important in redistributing resources towards the poor in Chile	113
Table 4.1. The Basic Solidarity Pension (PBS): evolution of payment rates and expected coverage	152
Table 4.2. Distribution of pensioners by payment methods	157
Table 4.A1.1. Most outlays on pension payments are through annuities rather than programmed withdrawals	171
Table 4.A1.2. AFP portfolio characteristics and yields and default age rules for clients	171

List of Figures

Figure 1.1. Chile's annual GDP growth compared with OECD and selected Latin American countries	34
Figure 1.2. Chile's exports	35
Figure 1.3. Population by age class	36

Figure 1.4. Evolution of employment/population ratios by gender and age groups, 1996-2007	39
Figure 1.5. Reasons for inactivity among women, 2006	41
Figure 1.6. Employed persons in Latin America not contributing to social insurance	45
Figure 1.7. Informality among employees by age	48
Figure 1.8. Health indicators	50
Figure 1.9. Education outcomes	51
Figure 1.10. Households owning their main dwellings	52
Figure 1.11. Change in the Lorenz curve: a measure of declining income inequality ..	58
Figure 2.1. Measuring employment protection legislation (EPL)	68
Figure 2.2. Minimum wage as a percentage of the average wage in OECD countries and Chile	79
Figure 3.1. Public social and education spending has increased in Chile, but remains low in international comparison	110
Figure 3.2. Public investment in health and education in Chile is limited compared with OECD countries	115
Figure 4.1. Publicly-mandated pension spending in Chile is close to the OECD average	147
Figure 4.2. The income position of the elderly is relatively good in Chile	150
Figure 4.3. Replacement rates in Chile are relatively close to the OECD average	155
Figure 4.4. Pension coverage is increasing but remains low in international comparison	160
Figure 4.5. The contribution density among female workers is relatively low	162
Figure 4.6. Disability benefit replacement rates in Chile are on par with other OECD countries	165
Figure 4.A1.1. Evolution of the minimum wage, average wage of contributors to the mandatory pension system (AFP), and minimum pension payments	172
Figure 4.A2.1. Administrative charges declined until 2001	174
Figure 4.A2.2. AFP profits seem to be at a higher level than in the 1990s	175
Figure 4.A2.3. Most AFP members have investment portfolios with intermediate risks	176
Figure 4.A2.4. Foreign investment by AFPs has grown rapidly over the last decade	177
Figure 4.A2.5. Real rate of investment returns have trended up since the late 1990s	178
List of Boxes
Box 1.1. Labour market and social policy recommendations for Chile	31
Box 1.2. Alternative measures of labour informality in Chile	46
Box 1.3. Poverty line in Chile	56
Box 2.1. Severance pay and unemployment insurance in Austria	70

Box 2.2. Labour taxation and mandatory contributions	80
Box 2.3. Chile's unemployment insurance (UI, seguro de cesantía)	85
Box 3.1. Public financing of social support in Chile: budgetary prudence and little redistribution in taxation	107
Box 3.2. Anti-poverty policy development and coherence in Chile	122
Box 3.3. Conditional family support in Mexico and holistic service delivery in some other OECD countries	124
Box 4.1. Reforming the pre-1981 PAYG scheme into a private-funded pension system	148