

Professor Emmanuel Gyimah Boadi

Executive Director of the Center for Democratic Development, Ghana (CDD-Ghana), an independent research think-tank for Ghanaian/African democratic development; Executive Director of the Afrobarometer, a survey research project tracking public opinion on democratic, social and economic developments in over 18 African countries; and Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Ghana, Legon. He has consulted on economic reform, good governance, corruption and democratic development in Africa for the World Bank, African Development Bank, Transparency International, Overseas Development Institute (UK) and the UNDP. His publications include “Ghana and South Africa, Assessing the Quality of Democracy” (with Robert Mattes) in Larry Diamond and Leonardo Morlino eds., Assessing the Quality of Democracy (2005); Public Opinion, Democracy and Market Reform in Africa (with Mike Bratton and Robert Mattes); and Democratic Reform in Africa: The Quality of Progress (2004).