

Lesley-Jane Eales-Reynolds

Director of Learning and Teaching, University of Westminster

Professor Lesley-Jane Eales-Reynolds, an Immunologist, is Director of Learning and Teaching at the University of Westminster. Previously she was director of a highly successful Centre of Excellence in Teaching and Learning, the ExPERT Centre. In 2001 she received her National Teaching Fellowship and in 2007 was awarded one of the first Senior Fellowships of the Higher Education Academy. She is a founding member and Chair of the Association of National Teaching Fellows and a member of the Academic Council and Board of the Higher Education Academy.

The National Teaching Fellowship Scheme in England and Northern Ireland.

Eales-Reynolds, L-J & Frame, P

Chair and Vice-Chair, Association, National Teaching Fellows.

Summary

In the 1990s, the Higher Education Funding Councils of England and the equivalent body in Northern Ireland (DEL NI) took a positive step by supporting the development of initiatives that promoted and supported innovation and the recognition of excellence in learning and teaching in Higher Education. One of the earliest manifestations of this support was the National Teaching Fellowship Scheme which celebrates its tenth anniversary this year, making this a timely opportunity to consider the personal and professional impact this scheme has had on the quality of teaching throughout the Higher Education sector.