Mr. Javier Blas – brief note

Commodities Correspondent

Javier Blas is the Financial Times' commodities correspondent since June 2007. He covers natural resources' markets, investment and regulation trends in commodities. For the last two years, he has focused strongly on the world's food crisis and the spike in agricultural commodities prices.

Previously, he reported on international economy for both the Financial Times and the Spanish business daily, Expansion. He has reported on these subjects since 1999.

Javier Blas was born in Spain and received a BA / MA in journalism from the University of Navarra, Spain, where he also studied economics. He also studied political communication at Sheffield University, United Kingdom.

He is fluent in English and Spanish and speaks French. He frequently appears on national and international television and radio.
