Managing Conflict of Interest in the Public Sector -

A Toolkit

As initially requested by SPAI member countries, this Toolkit was developed to provide examples of resources for effective policy and practical management of conflict of interest situations in the public sector. Ultimately, the Toolkit is intended to assist users in the task of increasing integrity and promoting Good Governance in the public sector, in accordance with the objectives of the SPAI Pillar II\(^1\), particularly at the public sector/private sector interface.

The OECD Guidelines for Managing Conflict of Interest forms a key part of the Toolkit, and provides a detailed policy reference. The tools themselves are based on examples of sound Conflict of Interest policy and practice drawn from various OECD member-countries. The 15 tools provided been adapted to provide generic versions of those policies and practices, which are intended to be suitable for adaptation for use in any country.

The Toolkit accordingly focuses on specific techniques, resources and strategies for:

- Identifying, managing, and preventing Conflict of Interest cases more effectively; and
- Increasing integrity in public management decision-making which might be affected by Conflict of Interest situations.

The SPAI countries have worked during 2003 with staff from the Governance Division of the OECD, representatives of NGOs and civil society, consultants and academics, in a pilot programme to test and evaluate the Toolkit. Specialist workshops were conducted in May and September 2003, at which a total of 75 representatives of various SPAI countries came together to explore and assess the relevance and applicability of the Toolkit to the needs of their countries, and to report on their experience in using the approaches suggested.

In general, the response to the Tools-based approach to managing Conflict of Interest has been very positive, with many suggestions for ongoing development of the existing suite of materials by the inclusion of additional tools, explanatory material, and examples.

\(^1\) Promotion of good governance and reliable public administration, as defined in SPAI Compact and Action Plan, adopted in Sarajevo in 2000.
The Toolkit will be the subject of further assessment and proposals for development in the course of the forthcoming High Level Forum for political-level officials from SPAI countries, to be held in Prague on 24-25 November 2003, with the support of the government of the Czech Republic.

INTRODUCTION TO CONFLICT OF INTEREST MANAGEMENT

In most countries there are increasing expectations from ordinary citizens, business leaders and civil society that Governments will be responsible for delivering higher standards of integrity in the Civil Service, public institutions, and government itself, and put an end to the corrupt practices and systems of the past.

At the same time, new forms of partnership between government and the private sector, and increasing engagement by governments with civil society, mean that Conflict of Interest issues, and ‘integrity in government’ generally, are becoming a major focus of reform measures, and of continuing opposition to corruption in the public sector.

Some of these reforms focus on systems: the goal of a National Integrity System such as that proposed by Transparency International is to make corruption by officials a high-risk and low-return undertaking, through the operation of a coherent and holistic system of laws, institutions, enforcement practices, and civil service capacities. [see TI Corruption Handbooks for 2001 and 2002, available for downloading at – www.transparency.org ].

Other approaches focus on individuals and their conduct as part of the system of governance [See the resources and network of institutions which are part of the OECD Anti-Corruption Network at - http://www.anticorruptionnet.org/acncqi/user_side/projects.cgi?lang=en&site_type=graphics&come_fro m=projects&search=1&country_id=110 . An electronic version of this Toolkit in various languages is also available for downloading from this site.]

Identifying and controlling Conflict of Interest in acceptable and efficient ways is increasingly focused on achieving a professional, accountable and responsible Civil Service which is committed to integrity and service to the public and the government. The OECD Guidelines for Managing Conflict of Interest, which are incorporated in this Toolkit, provide the first international benchmark for policy and practice in this crucial and difficult area.

In its work on Ethics in the Public Service since 1996, the OECD has observed that the institutionalisation of sound standards and values is one of the best guarantees of an ethical public service. The OECD’s Ethics Infrastructure provides a set of suggestions on how ethical and professional norms and processes can be reinforced by practical oversight and accountability mechanisms to improve integrity in the public service, and thereby reduce the scope for misconduct and corruption [see website for OECD publications on Ethics in the Public Service http://www.oecd.org/EN/about/0.,EN-about-303-9-no-no-no-303,00.html ]
TOOL SPECIFICATION #1

TOOL NAME: “CONFLICT OF INTEREST” - GENERIC DEFINITION

TOOL TYPE: Definition of fundamental idea

APPLICATIONS: 1. Inclusion in a rule / policy / law;
2. To provide objective test of conduct / facts;
3. To provide a clear factual basis for effective identification and management of individual cases, and for sanctions;
4. To provide a clear concept for teaching / training / information.

COMMENTS

This Basic Definition conveys the three elements of ‘Conflict of Interest’ in a simple way, which can be tested. The fundamental idea is that where there is, in fact, an unacceptable possibility of conflict between a public official’s interests as a private citizen (private-capacity interests) and their duty as a public or civil servant (official duty), a “conflict of interest” exists.

The basic definition can also be applied in order to test situations in which there appears to be a conflict of interest, but this is not in fact the case, or may not be the case. This situation is regarded as an “apparent conflict of interest”. Having an “apparent conflict of interests” as a public official can be as serious as having an actual conflict, because of the potential for suspicion of the official’s integrity, and that of his/her organisation. Apparent conflicts can be investigated using this definitional tool by asking: “Does Official X appear to have a conflict of interest?”

An official may have private-capacity interests which may be such as to cause a conflict of interests to arise in the future; this is called a “potential conflict of interest”.

The definition assumes that a reasonable person, knowing the relevant facts, would conclude that the official’s private-capacity interest concerned was such that that it could improperly influence the official’s conduct or decision-making as a public official.

Where such a definition is used, for example in a government policy, or a regulation or law, it is usual for the intended meaning of “private interests” to be defined specifically. It may also be necessary to define the terms “public official” and “official duty” specifically, to remove the possibility of doubt in application.

TOOL #1 - BASIC DEFINITION: “Conflict of Interest”

A ‘conflict of interest’ involves a conflict between the public duty and the private interest of a public official, in which a public official’s private-capacity interest could improperly influence the performance of their official duties and responsibilities.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #2

TOOL NAME: CONFLICT OF INTEREST - GRAPHICS 1-6

TOOL TYPE: Representational Diagrams

APPLICATIONS:
1. Concept clarification generally, in conjunction with Tool #1;
2. Training

COMMENTS

The various elements of the Diagrams 1-6 show the functional relationship between public officials (vertical axis) who exercise power by making official decisions on behalf of the State or an authority, and private citizens (horizontal axis) who seek to pursue their rights and interests.

The diagrams show how a conflict of interest involves a breach of professional trust relationship which is required of the public official, namely – a duty not to misuse his/her official position as public official in order to obtain an improper private-capacity advantage, either for the official themselves or for another private interest.

The diagrams represents clearly and simply the structural relationships of public office, showing in particular the difference between and official’s public and private “roles”. They apply in general terms both to appointed officials (civil servants) and elected officials (“politicians”).

The essential features of Corruption and Abuse of Public Office are also made clear.
DIAGRAM 1 - “The Role of the Public Official”

The PUBLIC OFFICIAL - exercises state powers and functions affecting the rights and interests of private citizens...

The PRIVATE CITIZEN:
has rights... ...and interests...

NOTES:  It is important to recognise that the term “Public Official” is being used here generically: it is clear that the term can be used to refer to public servants or elected officials, or any other kind of official who performs public functions or duties of the state or a government or government organisation, at any level.

Because public officials are closely concerned with the exercise of power, it is this relationship between citizens and officials which is (or ought to be) -

- the focus of a public service’s Code of Ethics, and
- the main focus of transparency and accountability mechanisms.
The PUBLIC OFFICIAL -
…is trusted to make decisions, using state powers and functions, which affect the rights and interests of private citizens…

- has rights… …and interests…

The PRIVATE CITIZEN -

TRUST

NOTES: It is important to understand that citizens and the State (as the ultimate employer of public officials) are both entitled to trust that they will receive “professional” service by official.

In particular this means that the official’s performance of official duties should be unaffected by personal Conflict of Interest. Where this principle is not observed, ‘trust in government’ and public institutions usually suffer.

Increasingly it is Civil Society organisations, employee unions, and media, which take on the task of scrutinising the use of power by officials (not limited to corruption matters).

This diagram makes it clear why managing Conflict of Interest is said to be the most important integrity problem for public organisations and governments which wish to be trusted by citizens.
DIAGRAM 3 - “Conflict of Interest”

The PUBLIC OFFICIAL -
…holds an official position, which could be used improperly, for private advantage.

- Rights of the CITIZEN, STATE, …

- As a PRIVATE CITIZEN, the public official has “private interests which could improperly affect the performance of official duties…”

TRUST ?

NOTES - Trust in the “integrity” of the official and the organisation can be seriously damaged by suspicion that the public official’s performance of official duties could be affected by a conflict of interest.

As all public officials have private interests of some kind in their capacity as private citizens, it is necessary to identify and manage conflicting interests as they arise.

Integrity can be protected / improved by making sure that there is a clear break between the official’s official functions and his/her private interests (including the interests of related persons or organisations), and by making public the official’s relevant “private-capacity interests”.

[This situation is also called an ‘actual’ conflict of interests.]
DIAGRAM 4 – “How a Conflict of Interest can become Corruption”

NOTES – the diagram shows a situation in which an official’s actual performance of official duties / exercise of state powers is improperly affected by Conflict of Interest: the official has taken advantage of their public position to give an improper advantage to themselves or to another private interest that arises out of their capacity as a private citizen.

This is another way of saying that the official has failed to remain uninfluenced by considerations of private advantage, or that they failed to be “disinterested”.

This diagram shows the “breach of trust” elements of the generic definition of “corruption”, as it relates to a public official. In general that breach could involve dishonesty (e.g. fraud, misrepresentation), breach of the law or regulations, misuse of funds or resources, abuse of position, failure to perform official duty adequately or correctly, etc.
Managing Conflict of Interest – From Policy to Practice

Diagram 5 - Managing a Conflict of Interest #1

PUBLIC OFFICIAL:
…exercises state power while having private interests which are job-relevant …

CITIZENS…

TRUST

- the PUBLIC OFFICIAL appears to have a “conflict of interests”, but the private interest is in fact being managed ‘at arm’s length’, appropriately.

NOTES - the conflict of interest is being managed so as to remove the official from decision-making or official action relevant to his/her interest.

This is achieved in this example by requiring the official to liquidate or resign from the private interest that otherwise could cause an actual conflict. Alternatively another person may control the asset independently in a “blind trust” assignment / delegation of the asset.

The diagram shows why it is important that the official and his/her organisation must be able to demonstrate publicly in some way that the official’s interests were in fact “at arm’s length” from his/her official decisions and actions.
DIAGRAM 6 - Managing a Conflict of Interest #2

The PUBLIC OFFICIAL -
…exercises state powers…(etc) for authorised / official purposes.

COMMUNITY…

- the PUBLIC OFFICIAL has interests which cause a “conflict of interests”, and withdraws from decision-making related to the conflict.

NOTES – in this example, the conflict of interest is shown as being managed appropriately by having another official temporarily perform the official’s duties etc that otherwise would be affected by the conflict.

This option may not always be available, in law or in practice, or efficient (if the conflict is likely to occur often because of the nature of the official’s work.

The option may also be unconvincing to the community, unless the organisation and the individual official have established good administrative procedures, and good reputations for integrity already.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #3

TOOL NAME: OBJECTIVE TESTS FOR IDENTIFYING A CONFLICT OF INTEREST

TOOL TYPE: Structured Questionnaire

APPLICATIONS:
1. Identification of conflict situations in specific detail;
2. To provide objective identification of relevant conduct / facts;
3. To provide a clear set of routines for teaching / training.
4. To provide objective evidence for management of conflict situation.

COMMENTS

The following tests proved a simple questionnaire-style framework for identifying the relevant features of Conflict of Interest situations in detail.

Every public official should be trained to understand these tests, and every senior manager should be competent in applying them to real-world situations. Failure to do so will probably mean that conflict situations escape attention.

The tests should be part of professional formation programs, in conjunction with the definitional tools #1 and #2.

Civil Society organisations could also use these tools for the training of their members, and for conducting courses for (e.g.) media journalists.
TESTS FOR IDENTIFYING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Instruction: In each test, ask and answer each question in order.

TEST 1.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST situation [- sometimes be referred to as an actual or real Conflict of Interests]:

- Question 1  What official functions or duties is person X responsible for?
  [Refer to relevant official policy document, functional duty statement, law, or contract, and to the functional objectives of the official’s organisation, etc].

- Answer  Person X is responsible for FUNCTIONS 1,2,3 (etc)  in MINISTRY B

- Question 2  Does person X have private interests of a relevant kind? [See Comments below]

- Answer  YES. [ The relevant facts are known]

- Conclusion:  Person X has a Conflict of Interest.

Comments: “relevant interest” in this context usually means the private interest is relevant to the official’s position or functional responsibilities, AND is -

1. a private interest which is of such a kind that it could improperly influence person X’s performance of their assigned official duties (for example, family responsibilities, religious belief, professional affiliation or political alignment, personal assets or investments, debts, etc.); or

2. a private interest which is of such a value that it could improperly influence A’s performance of their assigned official duties (for example, a business interest, or an opportunity to make a financial profit or avoid a loss, etc.).
TEST 2

APPARENT CONFLICT OF INTERESTS

- Question 1 What official functions or duties is person X responsible for?
  [Refer to relevant official policy document, functional duty statement, law, or contract ,and to the functional objectives of the official’s organisation, etc].

- Answer Person X has official responsibility for FUNCTIONS X,Y, in MINISTRY B

- Question 2 Does X hold private interests of a relevant kind? [See comments below].

- Answer It appears to be the case that person X does in fact hold relevant private interests.
  [The relevant facts are not certain]

Conclusion: Person X has an apparent Conflict of Interests.

Comments:

“Relevant interest” here means the same as in Test 1 above.

An “apparent conflict of interest situation” can be as seriously damaging as an actual conflict situation, and should be treated in the same way.

The facts about X’s relevant interests, and their official position / responsibilities, must be established accurately, so that a judgement can be made about whether person X has a conflict of interest or does not.

Until such time as the facts about relevant interests are clear, X can be said to have a (continuing) “apparent conflict of interest”.

"Managing Conflict of Interest – From Policy to Practice" - WORKSHOP RESOURCES
Instruction: In each test, ask and answer each question in order.

Test 3

POTENTIAL CONFLICT OF INTERESTS

- Question 1 What official functions or duties is person X responsible for?
- Answer Person X is responsible for FUNCTIONS X,Y, in MINISTRY B

- Question 2 Does X hold private interests of a relevant kind?
- Answer NO, (AS AT THE PRESENT MOMENT), BUT POSSIBLY IN THE FUTURE, X’S PERSONAL INTERESTS COULD BECOME ‘RELEVANT INTERESTS’.

Conclusion: X has a potential Conflict of Interest situation.

Comments: “Relevant interest” here means the same as above.

The facts are that A has private interests, which are currently not “relevant interests”, because person X’s current official duties are currently unrelated to his/her private interests.

However if it is likely or possible that X’s official duties could change, in such a way that person X’s private interests could affect his or her performance of official duties, then they would become “relevant interests”. As a result X could be currently said to have a potential conflict of interests.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #4

TOOL NAME: GENERIC CHECKLIST FOR IDENTIFYING ‘AT-RISK’ AREAS FOR CONFLICT OF INTEREST.

TOOL TYPE: Checklist (Open-ended)

APPLICATIONS:
1. Management action
2. Training applications

COMMENTS

The following generic checklist is intended to be used by managers to identify those areas of their responsibility where the organisation is at risk if Conflict of Interest situations occur.

In each case a ‘Yes’ answer is desirable.

For most questions, an administrative procedure is necessary, to enable the risk of Conflict of Interest situations to be identified and reduced or managed effectively.

Therefore, in the case of a ‘Yes’ answer, the user should go on to ask themselves “What is the relevant administrative procedure, and is it effective?”

In the case of a ‘No’ answer, the user should go on to ask themselves “Why is there no relevant administrative procedure, and what could be done to establish an effective process?”
CHECKLIST

Identifying ‘At-risk’ areas for Conflict of Interest potential.

1 Additional (“ancillary”) employment –
   • Has the organisation defined a policy and related administrative procedure for approval of additional / ancillary employment?
   • Are all staff made aware of the existence of the policy and procedure?
   • Does the policy identify potential Conflict of Interest arising from the proposed ancillary employment as an issue for managers to assess when considering applications for approval?
   • Is there a formal authorisation procedure, under which staff may apply in advance for approval to engage in other employment while retaining their official position?
   • Is the policy applied consistently and responsibly, so as not to discourage staff from applying for approval?
   • Are approvals reviewed from time to time to ensure that they are still appropriate?

2 “Inside” information –
   • Has the organisation defined a policy and administrative procedure for ensuring that “inside information”, especially privileged information which is obtained in confidence from private citizens or other officials in the course of official duties, and in particular -
     • commercially sensitive business information
     • taxation and regulatory information,
     • personally sensitive information,
     • law enforcement and prosecution information,
     • Government economic policy and financial management information, is kept secure and is not misused by staff of the organisation?
   • Are all staff made aware of the existence of the policy and procedure?
   • Are all managers made aware of their various responsibilities to enforce the policy?

3 Contracts –
   • Does the organisation ensure that the staff involved in the preparation, negotiation, management, or enforcement of a contract involving the organisation has declared any private interest relevant to the contract?
   • Does the organisation have the power, either by law or by contractual provision, to cancel a contract if it is proved that any significant aspect of the contract was compromised by an unidentified conflict of interest or corruption involving the contractor?
   • Where a contract has been identified as compromised by an unidentified conflict of interest or corruption involving an official or former officials of the organisation, does the organisation retrospectively assess other significant decisions made by the official in his/her official capacity to ensure that they were not also compromised by undeclared conflicts of interest?
4 Gifts and other forms of benefit –

- Does the organisation’s current policy deal with conflicts of interest arising from both traditional and new forms of gifts or benefits?
- Does the organisation have an established administrative process for controlling gifts, for example by defining acceptable and unacceptable gifts, for accepting specified types of gifts on behalf of the organisation, and for declaring significant gifts offered to officials?

5 Family and community expectations –

- Does the organisation recognise the potential for conflicts of interest to arise from expectations placed on individual public officials by their immediate family, or by their community (including religious or ethnic communities), especially in a multicultural / pluricultural context?

6. ‘Outside’ appointments –

- Does the organisation define the circumstances under which a public official may undertake a concurrent appointment on the board or controlling body of an “outside” organisation or body which is involved in a contractual, regulatory, partnership or sponsorship arrangement with their employing organisation? For example,
  - a community group or an NGO,
  - a professional or political organisation,
  - another government organisation or body
  - a government-owned corporation or a commercial public organisation?
- Does the organisation define an administrative process for authorising such appointments in which potential for conflict of interest issues is considered?

7 Business or NGO Activity after leaving public office –

- Does the organisation have the power, under law or a contract of employment, to define conditions under which a former public official may undertake an appointment with an “outside” organisation or body which is involved in a contractual, regulatory, partnership or sponsorship arrangement with the official’s former employing organisation?
- Does the organisation actively maintain authorisation procedures, under which a public official who is about to leave public office may negotiate an appointment or employment or other activity with a body where there is potential for a conflict of interest to compromise the organisation?
- Where an official has left the organisation for employment in a non-government body or activity without undertaking the provided approval process, does the organisation retrospectively assess the decisions made by the official in his/her official capacity to ensure that those decisions were not compromised by undeclared conflicts of interest?
TOOL SPECIFICATION #5

TOOL NAME: GENERIC ETHICS CODE PROVISIONS RELEVANT TO CONFLICT OF INTEREST

TOOL TYPE: Draft Model Law / Ethics code clauses

APPLICATION: Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate to suit the local laws and legislative drafting practices) in new or revised Ethics law, Code, etc

COMMENTS

The Tool #5 consists of a suite of related draft clauses which reflect the approach taken by the fundamental definition of Conflict of Interest (Tool #1).

The draft clauses focus on the key elements of a modern Code of Ethics or anti-corruption law for the public sector.

With appropriate adaptation to suit the law and drafting conventions of the country concerned, these clauses could be used to give effect to the definition of Conflict of Interest advocated in this package, while at the same time making the relationship between conflict of interest, corruption, integrity and ethics clear.
BASIC CODE of ETHICS PROVISIONS RELEVANT TO CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Serving the Public Interest
Civil servants and public officials are expected to maintain and strengthen the public's trust and confidence in government, by demonstrating the highest standards of professional competence, efficiency and effectiveness, upholding the Constitution and the laws, and seeking to advance the public good at all times.

Transparency
Civil servants and public officials are expected to use powers and resources for public good, under government policy. They should be prepared to be accountable for the decisions they make, and to justify their official decisions and actions.

Integrity
Civil servants and public officials are expected to make decisions and act solely in the public interest, without consideration of their private interests. Public Service being a public trust, the improper use of a public service position for private advantage is regarded as a serious breach of professional integrity.

Legitimacy
Civil servants and public officials are required to administer the laws and government policy, and to exercise administrative authority under delegation. That power and authority should be exercised legitimately, impartially and without fear or favour, for its proper public purpose as determined by the Parliament or the official’s public organisation.

Fairness
Civil servants and public officials should make official decisions and take action in a fair and equitable manner, without being affected by bias or personal prejudice, taking into account only the merits of the matter, and respecting the rights of affected citizens.

Responsiveness
As agents and employees of the elected Government, Civil servants and public officials are required to serve the legitimate interests and needs of the Government, other civil servants, and all citizens, in a timely manner, with care, respect and courtesy.

Efficiency and Effectiveness
Civil servants and public officials are required to obtain best value for public expenditure, and efficient use of assets deployed in or through public management, and to avoid waste and extravagance in expenditure of public funds and the use of public assets.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #6

TOOL NAME: CONFLICT OF INTEREST SELF-TEST

TOOL TYPE: Short Questionnaire / memory-jogger for senior managers

COMMENTS
As a diagnostic measure, senior managers and heads of public organizations can use the following short questionnaire to remind themselves of the need for personal efforts, specifically targeted, to discourage the growth of Conflict of Interest, corruption and misconduct in the organizations for which they carry responsibility.

_Self-Test_

1. If a public survey on the incidence of Conflict of Interest cases were conducted in Government Ministries this week, I believe that the survey would show that the occurrence of serious Conflicts of Interest cases in my Ministry / agency is -
   (a) Low
   (b) moderate
   (c) high
   (d) [no opinion.].

2. In the course of my duties in the past six months, what have I achieved specifically with reference to reducing:
   (a) Conflict of Interest?
   (b) Lack of transparency in the organisation?
   (c) Lack of accountability in the organisation?

3. In the course of my duties in the past six months, how many times have I spoken with my senior Ministry staff with specific reference to:
   (a) Managing Conflict of Interest?
   (b) Increasing transparency in what we do as officials?
   (c) Increasing accountability for what we do as officials?

4. In seeking to increase transparency and accountability in the organisation, what have I achieved to encourage concerns by staff about Conflict of Interest issues to be raised for discussion with me, or with an appropriate person in the organisation?

5. In seeking to increase transparency and accountability in the organisation, what have I achieved to encourage concerns about Conflict of Interest matters to be raised with me or with another appropriate person, by clients, contractors and citizens who have dealings with the organisation?

6. In the course of my duties in the next six months, what do I plan to achieve specifically with reference to reducing:
   (a) Conflict of Interest?
   (b) Lack of transparency in the organisation?
   (c) Lack of accountability in the organisation?
TOOL SPECIFICATION #7

TOOL NAME: GENERIC CONFLICT OF INTEREST LEGISLATION PROVISIONS

TOOL TYPE: Draft generic legislation provision, for adaptation

APPLICATION: Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate) in new or revised Ethics laws / Codes

COMMENTS

The Tool #7 consists of a suite of integrated draft clauses which reflect the approach taken by the fundamental definition of Conflict of Interest (Tool #1).

The draft clauses focus on the key elements of a modern Corruption / Misconduct or anti-corruption law for the public sector.

The definition of ‘Misconduct’ is important, as it provides the link to an enforceable administrative approach to controlling corruption and conflict of interest.

With appropriate adaptation to suit the specific legal framework and particular drafting practices of the country concerned, these clauses could be used to give effect to the definition of Conflict of Interest advocated in this package, while at the same time making clear the relationship between conflict of interest, corruption, integrity and ethics.
GENERIC CONFLICT OF INTEREST / CORRUPTION LEGISLATION PROVISIONS

Section 1—“Misconduct” Defined

1 Definitions

In this section—
“misconduct” means—
(a) for a person, regardless of whether the person holds an appointment—conduct, or a conspiracy or attempt to engage in conduct, of or by the person that adversely affects, or could adversely affect, directly or indirectly, the honest and impartial performance of functions or exercise of powers of—

   (ii) a breach of the trust placed in the person as the holder of the appointment; or
   (iii) a conflict of interest, whether the conflict has been declared in accordance with the requirements of the person’s appointment or not; or

(iv) to “hold an appointment” means to hold an appointment in a unit of public administration.

2 Meaning of “official misconduct”

(a) a criminal offence; or
(b) a disciplinary breach providing reasonable grounds for terminating the person’s services.

3 Conduct happening over time, or at any time, may be official misconduct

(1) Conduct may be official misconduct even though—
(a) it happened before the commencement of this Act; or
(b) some or all of the effects or elements necessary to constitute official misconduct happened before the commencement of this Act; or
(c) a person involved in the conduct is no longer the holder of an appointment.

(2) Conduct engaged in by, or in relation to, a person at a time when the person is not the holder of an appointment may be official misconduct, if the person becomes the holder of an appointment.

4 Conduct outside the [State/country] may be official misconduct

1. Conduct may be official misconduct regardless of—
   (a) where the conduct happens; or
   (b) whether the law relevant to the conduct is a law of the [State/country] or of another jurisdiction.

5 Conspiracy or attempt to engage in misconduct may be official misconduct

1. A conspiracy or an attempt to engage in misconduct is not excluded from being official misconduct if, had the conspiracy or attempt been completed by the taking of a further step, that step could constitute or involve—
   (a) an offence; or
   (b) grounds for terminating a person’s services in a unit of public administration, if the person is or was the holder of an appointment in the unit.

6 Official misconduct not affected by time limitations

TOOL SPECIFICATION #8

 TOOL NAME: GIFTS AND GRATUITIES CHECKLIST
 TOOL TYPE: Open-ended Prescriptive Checklist
 APPLICATION: Decision-making; Training

COMMENTS

Codes of Conduct / Ethics in the public sector often give a lot of attention to the issue of gifts.

This prescriptive checklist reduces the confusion to four simple tests, arranged under the mnemonic GIFT to make it easier to remember.

Each element of the GIFT mnemonic recalls one of the principles of public ethics, rather than a set of complex administrative definitions and criteria or processes.
GIFTS AND GRATUITIES CHECKLIST

Genuine
Is this gift genuine, that is, offered in appreciation for something which I have done well, in accordance with my functions as a public official, without any encouragement from me?

Independent
If I accept it, would a reasonable person be confident that I could be independent in doing my job in the future, especially if the donor of this gift is in some way involved or affected?

Free
Could I always feel free of any obligation to do something in return for the gift from the donor, or for his/her family or affiliates?

Transparent
Am I prepared to declare the gift in a completely transparent way, to my organisation and its clients, to my professional colleagues, and to the media and the public in general?
TOOL SPECIFICATION #9

TOOL NAME: GENERIC LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ON GIFTS FOR OFFICIALS

TOOL TYPE: Model generic legislation

APPLICATION: Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate) in new or revised Ethics laws / Codes

COMMENTS

1. Reportable Gifts - An agency’s ethics manual or Conflict of Interest policy should outline situations officers should avoid and actions to be taken if a situation does arise, including, for example, monetary gifts should not be accepted in any circumstance.

2. In developing systems, an agency should consider other relevant matters, including, for example, the Criminal Code, and any law or policy about ethics, corruption, misconduct, and Conflict of Interest applicable in the public sector.

3. Because of the nature of the reportable gifts, the details and circumstances of the gift should be recorded and documented to form an official record of the gift. This should discourage officers from acting unethically.
GENERIC LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ON GIFTS FOR OFFICIALS

1 Definitions

In this section —
“code of conduct”, of a department or statutory body, means the approved code of conduct of the Ministry, department or body.

“current market value”, of a gift, means the market value of the gift on the day it is received.

“gift” includes—
(a) a gift of entertainment, hospitality, travel or other benefit; and
(b) a gift of a valuable item of property, whether of a personal nature or otherwise, including, for example, ornate and precision display items, clocks, furniture, figurines, works of art, jewellery, personal items containing precious metals or stones and fine art work.

1 Meaning of “reportable gift”

(1) A “reportable gift” is a gift—
(a) made by an agency; or
(b) received by an officer of a department or a member or officer of a statutory body, other than a gift made by a personal friend or family member, in a purely personal capacity.

(2) A gift is not a reportable gift unless its current market value exceeds [€x*] (the “reportable gift threshold”).

(3) However, if the officer or member receives more than 1 gift from the same donor in a financial year, and the current market value of all gifts exceeds the reportable gift threshold, all the gifts are reportable gifts.

(4) Also, if an agency makes more than 1 gift to the same recipient in a financial year, and the current market value of all gifts exceeds the reportable gift threshold, all the gifts are reportable gifts.

(5) Subsection (2) does not limit the operation of the code of conduct of a department or statutory body to the extent the code provides for reporting a gift of a value less than the reportable gift threshold.

2 Reportable gift to be dealt with as a physical or material asset

(1). A reportable gift received by the officer or member must be dealt with as the agency’s asset.

3 Reportable gift to be declared and accounted for

(1) The officer or member who receives a reportable gift must complete a reportable gift declaration—
(a) for a gift that is a reportable gift because of section 1(3)—within 14 days after the gift becomes a reportable gift; or
(b) for another reportable gift—within 14 days after receiving the gift.
(2) Also, the officer or member must—
(a) give the gift to the agency; or
(b) pay to the agency—
(i) for a gift that is a reportable gift because of section 1(3)—an amount equal to the difference between the total current market value of the gifts that are reportable gifts because of section 1(3) and the reportable gift threshold; or
(ii) for another reportable gift—an amount equal to the difference between the current market value of the gift and the reportable gift threshold.

(3) Subsection (1) does not limit the operation of the code of conduct of a department or statutory body to the extent the code provides for reporting the receipt of a gift within a period less than 14 days.

4 Register of reportable gifts

(1) Each accountable officer of a department, or statutory body, must keep a register of reportable gifts—
(a) made by the agency; and
(b) received by an officer or member of the agency.

(2) The register must include each of the following—
(a) the date the reportable gift was made or received;
(b) the persons involved in making or receiving the gift;
(c) a description of the gift;
(d) the approval given for making the gift, if relevant;
(e) for gifts received by an officer or member of the agency—whether the officer or member intends to give the gift to the agency or keep it;
(f) if the officer or member gives the gift to the agency—
(i) the date the gift was given; and
(ii) the present location of the gift;
(g) if the officer or member keeps the gift—
(i) the estimated current market value of the gift and the basis, if any, for the estimate; and
(ii) the date and amount of the payment, made under section 3(2)(b), for the gift.

* Amount of limit to be selected according to policy intention.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #10

TOOL NAME: REGISTRATION OF PERSONAL INTERESTS FORM
TOOL TYPE: Basic model administrative process (for completion by individuals)
APPLICATION: Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate) in new or revised administrative process, supported by Ethics law / Code

COMMENTS

This short form of administrative procedure is intended to be used to identify the relevant personal interests which are most likely to cause a conflict of interest situation.

The process would need to be empowered by a law or government policy to be enforceable. Failure to provide a complete return when required could be made the subject of civil sanctions (for example, disciplinary action or disqualification from public office for a public servant, or removal from elected office for an elected official), or criminal sanctions as required in a particular case.

The process does not require an official to identify assets disposed of during the reporting period. A stronger form of this process would do so, by means of a question to identify any assets which were declared a year previously which are no longer owned, their value on disposal, how they were disposed of, and to whom.
REGISTRATION OF PERSONAL INTERESTS

Particulars of my private interests and those of my immediate family of which I am aware are set out in the attached form.

I confirm that I shall advise you should a situation arise where an interest of mine or an interest of a member of my immediate family of which I am aware, whether that interest is pecuniary or otherwise, conflicts, or may reasonably be thought to conflict, with my public duty.

INTEGRITY TESTING

Integrity Testing is a tool or strategy in which public officials are purposely placed in potentially compromising positions without their knowledge, so that their subsequent actions can be scrutinised and evaluated.

For example, an officer may be offered what appears to be a genuine bribe, in apparently realistic circumstances, by a person acting as a member of the public, while under surveillance by the officer’s employer or a law-enforcement or anti-corruption agency.

Integrity Testing can be random, testing any official in a particular organisation or function, or targeted at officials who are suspected of being corrupt. It is a proactive corruption detection technique, which is almost solely used within police services.

Initially integrity tests were applied to target officers who were the subject of complaints or allegations of serious corruption or misconduct. The test was contextual in that it was established in an area or field of work in which the suspect officer was engaged and it possessed characteristics familiar to the subject officer as an opportunity available for exploitation.

Simplistic Integrity Tests such as the one described above soon gave way to more complex tests involving the tracking, surveillance and monitoring of target officers.

The target officer’s movements, their associates, financial transactions and other indicators of possible corrupt activity were scrutinised and the officer was then subjected to complex tests to become known as ‘stings’ which by nature were ostensibly undercover operations.

Whilst ‘integrity testing’ can be a powerful specialist targeted corruption detection tool, organisations may need to exercise caution before use as:

• in some areas it may need special legislation to allow it
• it may need special policy determinations in some jurisdictions
• it risks alienating staff or creating fear of accidentally being caught amongst non-corrupt staff.

TOOL SPECIFICATION #12

TOOL NAME: INTEGRITY TESTING POLICY

TOOL TYPE: Generic Description for policy purposes

APPLICATION: Adoption after adaptation of necessary legal and policy instruments.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #13

TOOL NAME: WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION / PUBLIC INTEREST DISCLOSURE POLICY & PROCESS

TOOL TYPE: Policy Framework and information description of key features, process.

APPLICATION:
1. Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate) in new or revised Ethics laws / Codes / specific law for the purpose.
2. Training and public information.

COMMENTS

The following Tool is produced here in the form of a policy framework and a general information advice to persons who may wish to make a ‘public interest disclosure’ of wrongdoing by a public official.

The Tool refers to a law (a Public Interest Disclosure Act): a law or regulation could be developed from the information provided here.

Key terms are identified and explained, and administrative processes are referred to. Disclosure of conflicts of interest could be explicitly included among the matters that are protected.

Public Interest Disclosure protection (‘Whistleblower Protection’) is regarded as a crucial step in fighting corruption and wrongdoing by officials: if the disclosure of wrongdoing is not identified, it is unlikely to be controlled. It is therefore crucial that bona fide disclosures, which are made in accordance with the policy, should be protected effectively.

This policy framework recognises clearly that it is also crucial for public trust in public institutions that public officials at all levels should be seen to be active and effective in ensuring that disclosures made in accordance with this policy are respected, and dealt with appropriately.
The [Public Interest Disclosure Act] provides a way for people to report wrongdoing in the public sector - this is called making a “public interest disclosure” (also known as “whistle blowing”).

Who can make a disclosure?

- anyone - whether you work in the public sector or know of conduct against the public interest;
- you simply need to believe on reasonable grounds that your information tends to show some wrongdoing has occurred. You don’t need to identify the people involved but you do need to give enough information to permit investigation.

There are penalties for providing information that you know to be false or misleading.

What can you disclose?

The law covers reporting of different kinds of wrongdoing by public officials in the public sector such as:

- dishonesty or bias;
- misuse of official information;
- negligent or improper management of government funds;
- trying to influence a public official to act improperly;
- victimising a person because they have made a public interest disclosure.

Who can you disclose to?

- the agency where the conduct occurred;
- an agency that you think may have the power to investigate the conduct;
- any Government agency you think appropriate;
- the Ombudsman or Auditor General.

How are you protected if you make a disclosure?

- if you are victimised, you can go to court to take action to stop victimisation or to seek damages.

You may need to see a lawyer if you need legal advice about your case or about going to court.

What must Government agencies do under the law?

Agencies must:

- receive disclosures;
- treat disclosures confidentially;
- consider the risk to the informant when referring the disclosure to another agency;
- deal with disclosures that come under the law and involve that agency;
- keep statistical records of disclosures received and report on this in annual reports;
- give people who make disclosures feedback about the investigation of the disclosure;
- take appropriate action about complaints of victimisation and tell the complainant about the remedies available.

Is every disclosure investigated?

No - agencies can decide not to investigate, but only for reasons set out in the law. These are:

- that agency is not the right body to deal with the disclosure - they may refer the disclosure to another agency or the Ombudsman;
- the disclosure does not come under the law;
- another government body, court or tribunal has already dealt with the matter;
- they think the disclosure has no basis; or
- there is a better way to deal with the disclosure.

The agency must tell you which reason applies.

Other action available

If you are not satisfied you may:

- contact the Ombudsman or Auditor General. There may be grounds for further action;
- you may also wish to seek your own legal advice about your rights.

“Managing Conflict of Interest – From Policy to Practice” – WORKSHOP
What happens when you make a Public Interest Disclosure

Your first steps - contact a Government agency for information about the Act. Decide whether to make a disclosure. Contact the appropriate agency.

The agency decides if the disclosure is covered by the Act.

If it is, they will decide to:
• investigate;
• make arrangements with another agency about a joint investigation; or
• refer the disclosure to another agency or the Ombudsman.

If not they will tell you why

You can ask for progress reports

An impartial investigation will look into the substance of the disclosure. Depending on the nature of the case, this may involve getting information from the people directly involved. If the evidence suggests a crime has occurred, the investigation procedures in the Fraud Prevention Guidelines for that agency may be used.

After the investigation the agency will decide if there is enough evidence to substantiate the disclosure.

Substantiated: as a result of the investigation, necessary and reasonable action will be taken to:
• prevent the conduct recurring;
• discipline any person responsible for the conduct; and
• pursue criminal charges when appropriate.

Unsubstantiated: the agency will write to you to tell you about the decision.

If you do not agree with the decision or the actions taken, you can contact the Ombudsman’s office to see if you can make a complaint.

At any stage, an agency may decide not to take further action on the disclosure if: they think the disclosure has no basis; they think it has already been dealt with adequately; or if there is a more appropriate remedy reasonably available.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #14

TOOL NAME: CONFLICT OF INTEREST TRAINING

TOOL TYPE: Training materials - short cases and discussion indicators on Conflict of Interest, for public officials at all levels.

APPLICATION: 1. Incorporation (after adaptation / redrafting as appropriate) in training courses or sessions on professional formation, or for the specific purpose of developing understanding of Conflict of Interest matters.

COMMENTS:

The purpose of these case studies is to assist participants to develop practical skills in recognising Conflict of Interest problems, and in applying a sound decision-making procedure in a process of ethical reasoning.

The easier cases (marked * ) may be more appropriate to less experienced civil servants, and can be used in general introductory training in public sector professional formation.

They are also suitable for using with community groups or NGO staff to explain Conflict of Interest in the public sector context.

The cases can be difficult for many participants. Trainers will need to decide which cases to attempt.

As a guide, each case should take no less than 10 minutes to discuss, if superficial answers are to be avoided.
INTEGRITY, CORRUPTION, AND CONFLICT OF INTERESTS CASE STUDIES

NOTE: IN EACH CASE STUDY THE MOST APPROPRIATE RESPONSES ARE SUGGESTED IN THE TEXT IN BLOCK CAPITALS WHICH FOLLOWS EACH CASE STUDY QUESTION.

‘Integrity’ comes from a Latin word originally meaning "whole", “undamaged”, "undivided". By extension, it is clear that its use in the public sector applies to the proper use of funds, resources, assets, and powers, for the official purposes for which they are intended to be used.

In this sense the opposite of “integrity” is "corruption". Integrity is the most fundamental idea in the Ethics Principles.

‘Conflict of Interests’ is a related idea. A conflict between your personal interests, (what you stand to gain, not necessarily limited to money), and your duty as a civil servant (what your duty requires you to do, or perhaps more broadly, what is in the public interest), is to be avoided as far as possible, at all times. Even the appearance of a conflict of interests is to be avoided, to minimise the risk to the organisation’s reputation (and your personal reputation also) for integrity.

Most people are uncertain about this area of Ethics, partly because the language itself can be confusing: ‘having an interest’ in (say) the outcome of a decision is not the same as being ‘interested’ in the outcome (i.e. curious). If you stand to gain something personally from the decision you can be said to ‘have an interest’ in it - for example, the outcome of a Government tender process for which a member of your family’s business is competing.

Case Study 1 *

You are a senior officer in the Corporate Services and Data Processing Division of your Ministry. A contractor who has serviced the Ministry’s computer equipment for the past two years offers you a computer to use at home – free of charge. Over the time this person has become a close friend of yours. You do a lot of work for the Ministry at home, at the weekend especially, and the computer would be very useful. You cannot afford to buy a computer of your own.

Your friend the contractor says the computer is fairly old, and so is not worth much: he says you can keep it for as long as you want to. You accept the offer.

The Ministry computer equipment service contract is due for renewal in three months’ time, and you will be on the committee which will decide on the winning contract.

Q: Would you accept the offer from your friend? Why? Why not?

A: YOU SHOULD NOT ACCEPT. YOUR ROLE ON THE SERVICE CONTRACT BID COMMITTEE WOULD GIVE YOU A SERIOUS CONFLICT OF INTERESTS.

IN ADDITION THERE IS A PROBLEM WITH APPEARANCES – YOU SEEM TO BE GAINING A SIGNIFICANT PERSONAL ADVANTAGE FROM YOUR OFFICIAL POSITION.

Q: What is your "role-responsibility" as a civil servant in this case?

A: TO MAINTAIN THE INTEGRITY OF THE ORGANIZATION’S CONTRACT PROCESS.
Case Study 2

You are the chief Counter-Corruption Officer for the federal Ministry of Justice: your Deputy Minister has overall responsibility for the Ministry’s current major review of the national Criminal Code. A consultant from the Company which is advising on the review project asks you whether it would ‘cause difficulties’ if the Company were to invite your Deputy Minister to attend the forthcoming Soccer World Cup finals in a neighboring country.

The consultant says that the Company would provide the airfares and accommodation, and the deputy Minister would also be a guest in the Company’s corporate hospitality tent at the Stadium, which would give the Deputy Minister a good opportunity to meet other junior Ministers from neighboring countries who will also be there. The Deputy Minister is very keen on soccer, and is a former President of your country’s national Soccer Federation.

Q: Is a Conflict of Interest issue involved in this offer?

A: YES – THE GIFT FROM THE CONSULTANT RISKS BEING SEEN AS AN ATTEMPT TO COMPROMISE THE DEPUTY MINISTER’S INDEPENDENCE.

Q: How would you advise the Minister if asked to?

A: TO REFUSE THE OFFER – THE EVENT IS UNRELATED TO THE MINISTER’S OFFICIAL RESPONSIBILITIES, AND HIS/HER LOVE OF SOCCER IS WELL KNOWN.
Case Study 3*

You overhear a conversation between two staff from another Section of your organisation in the wash-room, in which one employee claims, laughing, that she had recently got her supervisor to recommend her promotion by agreeing not to report that the supervisor had been taking bribes from citizens (to escape prosecution for traffic offences).

As a supervisor, you know that the new Government is about to make bribe-taking a serious criminal offence. Your Ministry has recently introduced a strict policy to reduce bribe-taking by employees, which includes requiring its supervisors to set an example to other staff. You are also aware that the supervisor concerned is very popular among his staff and the senior management of the organisation.

Q: Is there a Conflict of Interest in this situation?

A: YES – YOU HAVE A PERSONAL INTEREST IN ‘NOT HEARING’ THE STORY, WHICH WILL AVOID A DIFFICULT SITUATION FOR YOU PERSONALLY.

THIS IS IN CONFLICT WITH YOUR DUTY AS A SUPERVISOR TO ENSURE THAT THE MATTER IS INVESTIGATED: NOT ONLY DOES IT SEEM THAT BRIBERY IS A CONTINUING PROBLEM, BUT THAT THE PROMOTION PROCESS MIGHT ALSO BE CORRUPTED.
Case Study 4

You discover that, for the last two years, a close friend at work has been stealing small amounts of cash and altering official financial records to disguise the thefts, and taking office supplies from your government Ministry.

She has been selling the supplies at the market in the next town. Because of the Ministry’s extremely poor accounting systems, no-one suspects that anything is wrong. Your friend has a sick husband and a young family to support and her salary as a civil servant is too low for a family to live on.

Q - Is there a Conflict of Interest in this case?

A: YES: YOU HAVE A CONFLICT OVER WHETHER TO DO YOUR DUTY AND REPORT THE THEFTS, OR AVOID THE PROBLEM AND HAVE A QUIET LIFE.

YOUR FRIEND HAD A CONFLICT OF INTEREST AT ONE STAGE, WHEN SHE HAD A CONFLICT BETWEEN HER DUTY - NOT TO STEAL FROM HER EMPLOYER – AND HER PRIVATE INTEREST.

BUT SHE HAS IN FACT STOLEN GOODS FROM HER EMPLOYER IN ABUSE OF HER POSITION, SO THIS CASE IS NOW BETTER REGARDED AS AN INSTANCE OF CORRUPTION (DEFINED AS “ABUSE OF A PUBLIC OFFICIAL’S POSITION FOR PRIVATE GAIN”), RATHER THAN AS A CONFLICT OF INTERESTS.
Case Study 5 *

You are the Complaints Officer in the Bureau of Education. You are asked to investigate a complaint that the Bureau’s contracting and tendering processes are corrupt.

The Bureau contracts for the supply of a lot of printed Curriculum material every month. The three printing firms which have always done all of the Bureau’s printing work in the past are well respected for the quality and cost-effectiveness of their work.

On investigation, you discover that a senior Contracts Officer in your Bureau has an uncle who has just purchased a local printing business.

The Contracts Officer’s job is to process all tenders for small to medium printing contracts. Your inquiries reveal that on several occasions she has awarded the contract to her uncle’s printing company, even though his tender price was slightly higher than that of other competing companies. In each case she gave the reason that her uncle’s company was more reliable and would do a better job.

Q: Is this a Conflict of Interests?

A: YES – THROUGH HER FAMILY CONNECTION. IT IS NOT FOR HER TO DECIDE IN ADVANCE WHO WOULD DO THE BEST JOB, AND EXCLUDE OTHERS.

Q: Is there an ‘abuse of office’ involved in this case?

A: YES (see if you can find an example: a clue - what decision is made by an official in this case?).
Case Study 6*

Your Ministry contracts for the supply of a lot of printed material every month. The three printing firms which have always done all of the Ministry’s printing work in the past are well respected for the quality and cost-effectiveness of their work.

Your father has just purchased a local printing business. Your job as Contracts Officer is to process all tenders for small to medium printing contracts.

You have access to the details of the other companies’ tenders for printing contracts, and your father has asked if you can tell him the information in their bids so that he can submit quotes at a lower rate. Your Ministry has just launched a major program to cut costs.

You know that the Ministry could save many thousands of dollars on printing costs over the year if you do as suggested by your father.

Q: Is this a Conflict of Interests, if the Ministry will benefit through substantial savings? Does the saving make the practice OK?

A: YES IT IS A CONFLICT OF INTERESTS. IT IS NOT FOR YOU TO DECIDE THAT THE SAVINGS JUSTIFY CORRUPT PRACTICES. YOU WILL GAIN ALSO, THOUGH YOUR FAMILY INTEREST.

Q: What appearances are at issue here?

A: YES - THROUGH THE APPEARANCE OF SELF-DEALING THROUGH HER FAMILY. THE PUBLIC DOES NOT KNOW OF THE SAVINGS JUSTIFICATION.

Q: Are appearances important? Why?

A: BECAUSE OF THE NEED FOR PUBLIC TRUST IN PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.
Case Study 7*

A middle-level manager repeatedly refuses to recruit, or to select for training opportunities, officers from a particular religious and ethnic background, even when individuals are well qualified and skilled, because, as he says, "those people are nothing but trouble".

Q: Is there a Conflict of Interest here?

A: YES - AS A FORM OF SELF-DEALING, IN WHICH THE MANAGER INDULGES HIS/HER PERSONAL PREJUDICE AGAINST THE ETHNIC GROUP CONCERNED, AT THE EXPENSE OF THE EMPLOYER’S INTERESTS.
Case Study 8*

As part of his official duties, an official driver is required to use the Ministry’s vehicle to deliver messages and to carry out official errands. His job requires him to be “on call” and away from the Ministry for lengthy periods on most days, and he is trusted to carry out his duties with minimal supervision. The driver has been with the Ministry for many years, and has never been any trouble.

Because of the flexibility of the driver’s work arrangements, he finds it easy to carry out personal business, such as paying bills, shopping, or taking family members to and from school, during the working day.

Q: As he still gets his official work completed, is it acceptable for the driver to carry out his private business in the Ministry’s vehicle?

A: YES, IF THIS IS ‘REASONABLE’ AND OTHER OFFICIAL BUSINESS IS NOT DELAYED, AND THERE IS NO SIGNIFICANT ADDITIONAL COST OR RISK TO THE ORGANISATION.
Case Study 9*

As manager of the Section, you are asked to act as Chair of the selection committee for a vacant permanent position in your Section. One of the applicants is from outside the Ministry, and is socially a friend of yours as you are related by marriage to the applicant’s husband. This is not known to the other members of the selection panel.

You decide that you will not allow this relationship to influence your judgment. You decide to tell the panel members that you will stand aside from the final assessment of your friend, but as Chair you will make the final decision in accordance with the views of the committee.

Q: Is this an appropriate solution?

A: NO: IT SHOULD BE SEEN AS AN APPARENT CONFLICT OF INTERESTS WHICH HAS POTENTIAL TO COMPROMISE THE CREDIBILITY OF THE SELECTION PROCESS BECAUSE OF THE FAMILY RELATIONSHIP. APPEARANCES ARE VERY IMPORTANT HERE.

IT COULD ALSO COMPROMISE THE SELECTION PANEL MEMBERS, AND YOUR FRIEND IS SHE IS SELECTED.
Case Study 10 *

The Minister for Certain Things*, who is responsible for the final approval in awarding the Ministry's building maintenance contracts, awards a contract to a company which employs the Minister’s son in a middle-level technical job. The procurement process leading to the decision was very minimal, allowing the Minister considerable discretion in his choice of contractor for this work.

The Minister did not mention this relationship to anyone in the Ministry when he decided on the contract as he did not believe it was a personal conflict of interests.

(* This is a fictional title for case study purposes only)

Case Study 11*

An elected parliamentary Representative operates a small business in the town in which one of her closest friends is the wife of the Chief of Police. The Representative is owed quite a lot of money by a merchant who has a shop in the next town. The merchant has been very sick, and slow to pay his debt as a result.

The Representative asks her friend to see whether her husband, the Chief of Police, can do anything to help her to obtain her money.

Later, the Chief of Police gives one of his Sergeants an instruction, unofficially, to “make life difficult” for the merchant, without giving any reason for the instruction. The merchant is not under any suspicion of wrongdoing, and has no criminal record. The Sergeant then telephones the merchant and tells him that he can expect a police raid every day until he pays the debt.

Q: Is there a conflict of interests in this case? What is it?

A: YES – THE CONFLICT BETWEEN THE PUBLIC DUTY AND PRIVATE INTERESTS OF THE POLICE CHIEF – (KEEPING HIS WIFE AND THE ELECTED REPRESENTATIVE HAPPY, BY GIVING AN UNLAWFUL INSTRUCTION, FROM WHICH THE POLICE CHIEF WILL PROBABLY BENEFIT PERSONALLY AS A RESULT.)

Q: Is there an “abuse of office” involved in this case?

A: YES: IN THIS CASE, THE USE OF AN OFFICIAL POWER FOR AN IMPROPER PURPOSE.
Case Study 12*

Your Office issues licenses to traders who have restaurants and food stalls in the town. Your job is to process the license applications. One day a popular food stall operator, Mr A…, comes to your office to seek urgent renewal of his business license, which expires tomorrow. He says he has been away on urgent business and did not notice the renewal date.

It normally takes a week in total for your Office to process a license application through the various steps. Your Office has a strict policy of prosecuting unlicensed traders: if Mr A… is caught trading without a license he could lose his license, and his place in the Market.

To show his appreciation for helping him, Mr A… offers to provide you and your family with free meals for a month if you will agree to process his license renewal application today. This is a very valuable offer, amounting to a week’s salary for you. He will be very offended if you refuse his gift. The Office has a strict anti-bribery rule, but you know that the rule does not prohibit gifts of food.

If you agree to do as he asks, it is inevitable that approval of several other applications will be delayed by three days, as today is Friday and Monday is a religious holiday.

Q: What are the ethical issues here?

A: THE OFFER OF A VALUABLE GIFT CREATES A CONFLICT OF INTEREST.

UNWARRANTED DELAY IN PROCESSING THE APPLICATIONS OF THOSE TRADERS WHO HAD APPLIED IN TIME IS ALSO AN ISSUE.

THE CLAIM THAT THE TRADER WILL BE OFFENDED IF YOU REFUSE HIS “GIFT” IS IRRELEVANT.
Case Study 13*

A public servant is directed to summarize the public’s responses to his Ministry’s recent survey on the Government’s proposed changes to the laws regulating environmental protection in the forestry industry. The officer secretly discards those survey responses which are in conflict with the officer's well-considered personal beliefs about the need for stronger government protection of the environment, and forests in particular. The officer is a well-qualified and experienced forestry scientist.

Q: Is the public servant acting wrongly in this example? What is wrong with putting forward your own views, as long as you have a clear conscience that you are right?

A: THIS IS AN ACTUAL CONFLICT OF INTEREST WHICH HAS RESULTED IN AN ABUSE OF OFFICE. [As a public servant, the officer is not “putting forward his views” in this example: he is secretly distorting the survey by destroying government information to advance a personal objective. This is in a strict sense, corrupt conduct – i.e. acting dishonestly, or in breach of trust, as a public official to advance a private interest].

There is a breach of the ‘trust relationship’ involved in this case, and an abuse of public office.
TOOL SPECIFICATION #15

TOOL NAME: OECD GUIDELINES ON MANAGING CONFLICT OF INTEREST

TOOL TYPE: Guidelines

APPLICATIONS: 1. Comprehensive Information as a basis for designing Conflict of Interest rules / policy / law /practice, and identifying and managing cases [generally applicable to any level of Government, and to both elected and appointed public officials.]

COMMENTS
The draft Guidelines are based on the analysis of the experience of Member countries collected by the OECD Survey on conflict of interest issues.

The draft Guidelines can help governments to consider existing and possible future Conflict of Interest policy and practice relating to public officials, with the objective of promoting integrity among public officials, and public trust in public institutions.

The draft Guidelines recognise that conflict of interest situations on the part of public officials, if unresolved, can undermine legitimate decision-making; distort the rule of law; compromise the development and application of policy; disrupt the functioning of markets; affect the allocation of public resources; encourage corruption; and thereby damage public confidence in public institutions.

Conflict of Interest policy in the public sector may become more problematic because of changing approaches to public management, changes in the traditional roles of Governments and government organisations, and changing community expectations. As a consequence, the draft Guidelines provide a definition of “conflict of interest” which is a simple, practical policy focus for the fundamental idea -- an unacceptable conflict between a public official’s private interests and their official duty.

The draft Guidelines put forward a suite of core principles, policy frameworks, institutional strategies, and practical management tools for managing conflict of interest matters, arranged in three sections:

- Managing conflicts of interest.
- Developing the policy framework; and
- Implementing the policy framework.
OECD GUIDELINES FOR MANAGING CONFLICT OF INTEREST IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

Preface

A growing public concern

1. Serving the public interest is the fundamental mission of governments and public institutions. Citizens expect individual public officials to perform their duties with integrity, in a fair and unbiased way. Governments are increasingly expected to ensure that public officials do not allow their private interests and affiliations to compromise official decision-making and public management. In an increasingly demanding society, inadequately managed conflicts of interest on the part of public officials have the potential to weaken citizens' trust in public institutions.

2. Conflicts of interest in both the public and private sectors have become a major matter of public concern world-wide. In government and the public sector, conflict of interest situations have long been the focus of specific policy; legislation and management approaches intended to maintain integrity and disinterested decision-making in government and public institutions. In the private sector there has also been a long history of concern for integrity in business, and in particular for protecting the interests of shareholders and the public at large. Recent scandals have drawn attention to the importance of avoiding conflicts of interest which can become an issue when, for example, a public official leaves public office for employment in the business or NGO sector, or an accounting firm offers both auditing and consulting services to the same client, or a regulatory agency becomes too closely aligned to the business entities it is intended to supervise.

3. New forms of relationship have developed between the public sector and the business and non-profit sectors, giving rise for example to increasingly close forms of collaboration such as public/private partnerships, self-regulation, interchanges of personnel, and sponsorships. New forms of employment in the public sector have also emerged with potential for changes to traditional employment obligations and loyalties. In consequence, there is clearly an emerging potential for new forms of conflict of interest involving an individual official’s private interests and public duties, and growing public concern has put pressure on governments to ensure that the integrity of official decision-making is not compromised.

4. While a conflict of interest is not ipso facto corruption, there is increasing recognition that conflicts between the private interests and public duties of public officials, if inadequately managed, can result in corruption. The proper objective of an effective Conflict of Interest policy is not the simple prohibition of all private-capacity interests on the part of public officials, even if such an approach were conceivable. The immediate objective should be to maintain the integrity of official policy and administrative decisions, and of public management generally, recognising that an unresolved conflict of interest may result in abuse of public office.

5. This objective can generally be achieved by ensuring that public bodies possess and implement relevant policy standards for promoting integrity, effective processes for identifying risk and dealing with emergent conflicts of interest, appropriate external and internal accountability mechanisms, and management approaches -- including sanctions -- that aim to ensure that public officials take personal responsibility for complying with both the letter and the spirit of such standards.

6. Traditionally, the different approaches to managing conflict of interest situations which have been taken by member countries have reflected their different historical, legal and public service traditions. Institutional measures such as positive external audit and verification, or other internal supervisory approaches, do have a place in the management of conflict situations. Other measures, such as limited or Managing Conflict of Interest

7. In a rapidly changing public sector environment, conflicts of interest will always be an issue for concern. A too-strict approach to controlling the exercise of private interests may be conflict with other rights, or be unworkable or counter-productive in practice, or may deter some people from seeking public office altogether. Therefore a modern Conflict of Interest policy should seek to strike a balance, by identifying risks to the integrity of public organisations and public officials, prohibiting unacceptable forms of conflict, managing conflict situations appropriately, making public organisations and individual officials aware of the incidence of such conflicts, ensuring effective procedures are deployed for the identification, disclosure, management, and promotion of the appropriate resolution of conflict of interest situations.

Aims of the Guidelines

8. The primary aim of the Guidelines is to help member countries, at central government level, consider existing Conflict of Interest policy and practice relating to public officials -- including public servants/civil servants, employees, and holders of public office -- who work in the national public administration. The Guidelines can also provide general guidance for other branches of government, sub-national level government, and state-owned corporations.

9. In particular, the Guidelines reflect policies and practices that have proved effective in OECD countries, and are intended to:

- Help government institutions and agencies to develop an effective Conflict of Interest policy that fosters public confidence in their integrity, and the integrity of public officials and public decision-making.

- Create a practical framework of reference for reviewing existing solutions and modernising mechanisms in line with good practices in OECD countries.

- Promote a public service culture where conflicts of interest are properly identified and resolved or managed, in an appropriately transparent and timely way, without unduly inhibiting the effectiveness and efficiency of the public organisations concerned.

- Support partnerships between the public sector and the business and non-profit sectors, in accordance with clear public standards defining the parties' responsibilities for integrity.

Defining a “conflict of interest”

10. Historically, defining the term ‘conflict of interest’ has been the subject of many and varying approaches. As all public officials have legitimate interests which arise out of their capacity as private citizens, conflicts of interest cannot simply be avoided or prohibited, and must be defined, identified, and managed. These Guidelines adopt a definitional approach which is deliberately simple and practical to assist effective identification and management of conflict situations, as follows:
A ‘conflict of interest’ involves a conflict between the public duty and private interests of a public official, in which the public official has private-capacity interests which could improperly influence the performance of their official duties and responsibilities.

11. Defined in this way, ‘conflict of interest’ has the same meaning as ‘actual conflict of interest’. A conflict of interest situation can thus be current, or it may be found to have existed at some time in the past.

12. By contrast, an apparent conflict of interest can be said to exist where it appears that a public official’s private interests could improperly influence the performance of their duties but this is not in fact the case. A potential conflict arises where a public official has private interests which are such that a conflict of interest would arise if the official were to become involved in relevant (i.e. conflicting) official responsibilities in the future.

13. Where a private interest has in fact compromised the proper performance of a public official’s duties, that specific situation is better regarded as an instance of misconduct or ‘abuse of office’, or even an instance of corruption, rather than as a ‘conflict of interest’.

14. In this definition, ‘private interests’ are not limited to financial or pecuniary interests, or those interests which generate a direct personal benefit to the public official. A conflict of interest may involve otherwise legitimate private-capacity activity, personal affiliations and associations, and family interests, if those interests could reasonably be considered likely to influence improperly the official’s performance of their duties. A special case is constituted by the matter of post-public office employment for a public official: the negotiation of future employment by a public official prior to leaving public office is widely regarded as a conflict of interest situation.

15. Defined in this way, conflict of interest is the focus of these Guidelines because, if not managed or resolved appropriately, it has the potential to undermine the proper functioning of democratic governments by:

- Weakening adherence by public officials to the ideals of legitimacy, impartiality, and fairness in public decision-making, and
- Distorting the rule of law, the development and application of policy, the functioning of markets, and the allocation of public resources.

Core principles for managing conflict of interest

16. In the interests of maintaining public confidence in public institutions, the Guidelines reflect the fact that public officials may be expected to observe in particular the following core principles in dealing with conflict of interest matters to promote integrity in the performance of official duties and responsibilities:

Serving the public interest

Public officials should make decisions and provide advice on the basis of the relevant law and policy, and the merits of each case, without regard for personal gain (i.e. be “disinterested”). The integrity of official decision-making, in particular in the application of policy to individual cases, should not be prejudiced by the religious, professional, party-political, ethnic, family, or other personal preferences or alignments of the decision-maker.

Public officials should dispose of, or restrict the operation of, private interests that could compromise official decisions in which they participate. Where this is not feasible, a public official should abstain from involvement in official decisions which could be compromised by their private-capacity interests and affiliations.

Public officials should avoid private-capacity action which could derive an improper advantage from ‘inside information’ obtained in the course of official duties, where the information is not generally available to the public, and are required not to misuse their position and government resources for private gain.

- Public officials should not seek or accept any form of improper benefit in expectation of influencing the performance or non-performance of official duties or functions.

- Public officials are expected not to take improper advantage of a public office or official position which they held previously, including privileged information obtained in that position, especially when seeking employment or appointment after leaving public office.

Supporting transparency and scrutiny

- Public officials and public organisations are expected to act in a manner that will bear the closest public scrutiny. This obligation is not fully discharged simply by acting within the letter of the law; it also entails respecting broader public service values such as disinterestedness, impartiality and integrity.

- Public officials’ private interests and affiliations that could compromise the disinterested performance of public duties should be disclosed appropriately, to enable adequate control and management of a resolution.

- Public organisations and officials should ensure consistency and an appropriate degree of openness in the process of resolving or managing a conflict of interest situation.

- Public officials and public organisations should promote scrutiny of their management of conflict of interest situations, within the applicable legal framework.

Promoting individual responsibility and personal example

- Public officials are expected to act at all times so that their integrity serves an example to other public officials and the public.

- Public officials should accept responsibility for arranging their private-capacity affairs, as far as reasonably possible, so as to prevent conflicts of interest arising on appointment to public office and thereafter.

- Public officials should accept responsibility for identifying and resolving conflicts in favour of the public interest when a conflict does arise.

- Public officials and public organisations are expected to demonstrate their commitment to integrity and professionalism through their application of effective Conflict of Interest policy and practice.
Engendering an organisational culture which is intolerant of conflicts of interest

- Public organisations should provide and implement adequate management policies, processes, and practices in the working environment to encourage the effective control and management of conflict of interest situations.

- Organisational practices should encourage public officials to disclose and discuss conflict of interest matters, and provide reasonable measures to protect disclosures from misuse by others.

- Public organisations should create and sustain a culture of open communication and dialogue concerning integrity and its promotion.

- Public organisations should provide guidance and training to promote understanding and dynamic evolution of the public organisation's established rules and practices, and their application to the working environment.

Developing the Policy Framework

17. Defining a policy approach to dealing with conflict of interest is an essential part of the political, administrative and legal context of a country’s public administration. These Guidelines do not attempt to cover every possible situation in which a conflict of interest might arise, but instead are designed as a general policy and practice reference that is relevant to a rapidly changing social context. The proposed measures are intended to reinforce each other to provide a coherent and consistent approach to managing conflict of interest situations. The key functions of this approach are:

- Definition of the general features of conflict of interest situations which have potential to put organisational and individual integrity at risk.

- Identification of specific occurrences of unacceptable conflict of interest situations.

- Leadership and commitment to implementation of the Conflict of Interest policy.

- Awareness that assists compliance, and anticipation of at-risk areas for prevention.

- Appropriate disclosure of adequate information, and effective management of conflicts.

- Partnerships with other stakeholders, including contractors, clients, sponsors and the community.

- Assessment and evaluation of a Conflict of Interest policy in the light of experience.

- Redevelopment and adjustment of policy and procedures as necessary to meet evolving situations.

1.1. Identify relevant conflict of interest situations

1.1.1. Provide a clear and realistic description of what circumstances and relationships can lead to a conflict of interest situation.

a) The general description of conflict of interest situations should be consistent with the fundamental idea that there are situations in which the private interests and affiliations of a public official create, or have the potential to create, conflict with the proper performance of his/her official duties. The description should emphasise the overall aim of the policy -- fostering public trust in government institutions.
b) The description should also recognise that, while some conflict of interest situations may be unavoidable in practice, public organisations have the responsibility to define those particular situations and activities that are incompatible with their role or public function because public confidence in the integrity, impartiality, and personal disinterestedness of public officials who perform public functions could be damaged if a conflict remains unresolved.

c) The policy should give a range of examples of private interests which could constitute conflict of interest situations: financial and economic interests, debts and assets, affiliations with for-profit and non-profit organisations, affiliations with political, trade union or professional organisations, and other personal-capacity interests, undertakings and relationships (such as obligations to professional, community, ethnic, family, or religious groups in a personal or professional capacity, or relationships to people living in the same household).

d) More focused examples of unacceptable conduct and relationships should be provided for those groups that are working in at-risk areas, such as the public-private sector interface, government procurement, regulatory and inspectorial functions, and government contracting. Specific attention needs to be given to functions which are subject to close public scrutiny or media attention.

1.1.2. Ensure that the Conflict of Interest policy is supported by organisational strategies and practices to help with identifying the variety of conflict of interest situations.

a) Laws and codes, as primary sources, should state the necessary definitions, principles and essential requirements of the Conflict of Interest policy.

b) In addition, guidelines and training materials, as well as advice and counselling, should provide practical examples of concrete steps to be taken for resolving conflict of interest situations, especially in rapidly-changing or “grey” areas such as private-sector sponsorships, privatisation and deregulation programmes, NGO relations, political activity, public-private partnerships and the interchange of personnel between sectors.

1.2. Establish procedures for identifying, managing and resolving conflict of interest situations

1.2.1. Ensure that public officials know what is required of them in relation to identifying and declaring conflict of interest situations.

a) Initial disclosure on appointment or taking up a new position -- Develop procedures that enable public officials, when they take up office, to identify and disclose relevant private interests that potentially conflict with their official duties. Such disclosure is usually formal, (by means of registration of information identifying the interest), and is required to be provided periodically, (generally on commencement in office and thereafter at regular intervals, usually annually), and in writing. Disclosure is not necessarily required to be a public process: internal or limited-access disclosure within the public organisation, together with appropriate resolution or management of any conflicts, may be sufficient to achieve the policy objective of the process -- encouraging public confidence in the integrity of the public official and their organisation. In general, the more senior the public official, the more likely it is that public disclosure will be appropriate; the more junior, the more likely it is that internal disclosure to the management of the official’s organisation will be sufficient.

b) In-service disclosure in office -- Make public officials aware that they must promptly disclose all relevant information about a conflict when circumstances change after their initial disclosure has been made, or when new situations arise, resulting in an emergent conflict of interest. As with formal registration, ad hoc disclosure itself is not necessarily required to be a public process: internal declaration may be sufficient to encourage public confidence that integrity is being managed appropriately.

c) Completeness of disclosure -- Determine whether disclosures of interests contain sufficient detail on the conflicting interest to enable an adequately-informed decision to be made about the appropriate resolution. The responsibility for the adequacy of a disclosure rests with the individual public official.

d) Effective disclosure process -- Ensure that the organisation’s administrative process assists full disclosure, and that the information disclosed is properly assessed, and maintained in up-to-date form. It is appropriate that the responsibility for providing adequate disclosure of relevant information should rest with individual officials. Ensure that the responsibility for providing relevant information rests with individual officials and this requirement is explicitly communicated and reinforced in employment and appointment arrangements and contracts.

1.2.2. Set clear rules on what is expected of public officials in dealing with conflict of interest situations.

a) Dealing with conflicting private interests -- Public officials should be required to accept responsibility for identifying their relevant private interests. An organisation’s policy statement should make it clear that the registration or declaration of a private interest does not in itself resolve a conflict. Additional measures to resolve or manage the conflict positively must be considered.

b) Resolution and management options -- Options for positive resolution or management of a continuing or pervasive conflict can include one or more of several strategies as appropriate, for example:

- Divestment or liquidation of the interest by the public official.
- Recusal of the public official from involvement in an affected decision-making process.
- Restriction of access by the affected public official to particular information.
- Transfer of the public official to duty in a non-conflicting function.
- Re-arrangement of the public official’s duties and responsibilities.
- Assignment of the conflicting interest in a genuinely ‘blind trust’ arrangement.
- Resignation of the public official from the conflicting private-capacity function, and/or
- Resignation of the public official from their public office.

c) Recusal and restriction -- Where a particular conflict is not likely to recur frequently, it may be appropriate for the public official concerned to maintain their current position but not participate in decision-making on the affected matters, for example by having an affected decision made by an independent third party, or by abstaining from voting on decisions, or withdrawing from discussion of affected proposals and plans, or not receiving relevant documents and other information relating to their private interest. The option of re-assigning certain functions of the public official concerned should also be available, where a particular conflict is considered likely to continue, thereby making ad hoc recusal inappropriate. Particular care must be exercised to ensure that all affected parties to the decision know of the measures taken to protect the integrity of the decision-making process where recusal is adopted.
d) Resignation -- Public officials should be required to remove the conflicting private interest if they wish to retain their public position and the conflict of interest cannot be resolved in any other way (for example by one or more of the measures suggested above). Where a serious conflict of interest cannot be resolved in any other way, the public official should be required to resign from their official position. The Conflict of Interest policy (together with the relevant employment law and/or employment contract provisions) should provide the possibility that their official position can be terminated in accordance with a defined procedure in such circumstances.

e) Transparency of decision-making -- Registrations and declarations of private interests, as well as the arrangements for resolving conflicts, should be clearly recorded in formal documents, to enable the organisation concerned to demonstrate, if necessary, that a specific conflict has been appropriately identified and managed. Further disclosure of information about a conflict of interest may also be appropriate in supporting the overall policy objective, for example by demonstrating how the disclosure of a specific conflict of interest was recorded and considered in the minutes of a relevant meeting.

Implementing the Policy Framework

18. While it is primarily the responsibility of individual public officials to be aware of possible conflicts of interest, public bodies and government organisations have the responsibility to ensure that the Conflict of Interest policy is implemented effectively. Particular attention needs to be paid to at-risk areas and functions, especially where significant conflicts are more likely to arise or to prove more damaging to organisational integrity and public confidence. In so doing, the potential for overly-complex procedures to discourage compliance should be recognised.

2.1. Demonstrate leadership commitment

2.1.1. Leadership -- All public officials, particularly more senior public officials and senior managers, should arrange their private-capacity interests in a manner that preserves public confidence in their own integrity and the integrity of their organisation, and sets an example to others. Mere compliance with the letter of the Conflict of Interest policy or law, narrowly interpreted, is not generally sufficient to encourage public confidence in an organisation’s integrity.

2.1.2. Commitment -- Organisations should take responsibility for the effective application of their Conflict of Interest policy, by:

a) Deciding in individual cases -- Managers must be prepared to exercise judgement when dealing with a disclosure of private interests. In particular, they should consider carefully the larger question of whether a reasonable person who is in possession of the relevant facts would be likely to think that the organisation’s integrity was at risk from an unresolved conflict of interest. When determining the most appropriate solution to resolve or manage the actual conflict situation, managers should weigh the interests of the organisation, the public interest, and the legitimate interests of employees, as well as other factors -- including in specific cases the level and type of position held by the public official concerned, and the nature of the conflict.

b) Monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of the policy -- Over time, organisations should ensure that the policy remains effective and relevant in dealing with current and anticipated conflicts in a continuously evolving environment, and change or redevelop the policy as necessary.
2.2. Create a partnership with employees: awareness, anticipation and prevention

2.2.1. Ensure wide publication and understanding of the Conflict of Interest policy.

a) Publish the Conflict of Interest policy -- Give all new public officials, upon initial appointment and on taking up a new position or function, a clear and concise statement of the current Conflict of Interest policy.

b) Give regular reminders -- Regularly remind public officials of the application of the policy in changing circumstances, and in particular ensure that public officials know how the rules are applied in the organisation and what their own responsibilities are. For example, an organisation’s Code of Conduct can be tailored as a practical instrument for setting and communicating Conflict of Interest standards both to public officials and the wider public.

c) Ensure that rules and procedures are available -- Provide up-to-date information about the organisation's policy, rules and administrative procedures relevant to conflict of interest, and clearly establish any additional requirements specific to the organisation.

d) Provide guidance -- Support public officials with information and advice, including real-world examples and discussions on how specific conflict situations have been handled in the past and are expected to be handled in the future. In particular, consult with staff on the application of the policy, and ensure that the policy’s rationale is understood and accepted.

e) Provide assistance -- Identify sources of appropriate assistance for public officials who are in doubt about the application of the policy, and widely publicise how to obtain such advice. Make such advice available to clients of the organisation and others, including contractors, agents, and partnering bodies, to assist stakeholders to be well-informed. Such advice may be especially valuable to parties who may feel that the public organisation’s Conflict of Interest policy is not fully effective but are reluctant to complain formally to the organisation concerned.

2.2.2. Review ‘at-risk’ areas for potential conflict of interest situations.

a) Additional employment -- Define the circumstances, including the required authorisation procedures, under which public officials may engage in ancillary ("outside") employment while retaining their official position.

b) “Inside” information -- Make sure that information collected or held by public organisations which is not in the public domain, or information obtained in confidence in the course of official functions, is understood to be privileged, and is effectively protected from improper use or disclosure.

c) Contracts -- Consider the circumstances in which the preparation, negotiation, management, or enforcement of a contract involving the public organisation could be compromised by a conflict of interest on the part of a public official within the public organisation.

d) Gifts and other forms of benefit -- Consider whether the organisation’s current policy is adequate in recognising conflicts of interest arising from traditional and new forms of gifts or benefits.

e) Family and community expectations -- Consider whether the organisation’s current policy is adequate in recognising conflicts of interest arising from expectations placed on public officials by their family and community, especially in a multicultural context.
f) Outside appointments -- Define the circumstances, including the required authorisation procedures, under which a public official may undertake an appointment on the board or controlling body of, for example, a community group, an NGO, a professional or political organisation, another government entity, a government-owned corporation, or a commercial organisation which is involved in a contractual, regulatory, partnership, or sponsorship arrangement with their employing organisation.

g) Activity after leaving public office -- Define the circumstances, including the required authorisation procedures, under which a public official who is about to leave public office may negotiate an appointment or employment or other activity, where there is potential for a conflict of interest involving the organisation.

2.2.3 Identify preventive measures that deal with emergent conflict situations.

a) Meeting procedures -- Enable participants in official decision-making to foresee potential conflicts, where feasible: for example by providing meeting agendas in advance; record in meeting proceedings any conflicts that arise and the measures taken to resolve them.

b) Recusal -- Establish clear rules and efficient procedures (for example, a register of interests for board members, advisors and senior management), to ensure that ad hoc conflicts of interest are made transparent so that decision-making is not compromised.

c) Screening processes -- As part of selection processes, require identification in advance of relevant interests, and discuss possible strategies for resolution of identified conflicts; obtain appropriate clearances (such as tax clearance certificates), declarations or undertakings, to identify and deal with potential conflict of interest situations at an early stage.

d) Periodic system assessment -- Review the implementation of policy and procedures on a regular basis and update mechanisms and procedures to ensure their relevance to a constantly evolving situation. Consider the relevance of current assumptions – for example concerning the impact of new technology, which makes possible ‘day-trading’ of stocks and shares via the Internet, which in turn could necessitate daily disclosures of an individual’s changing pecuniary interests. Draw on surveys of client and partner bodies’ experience of risk, where appropriate, partly to engage a broader set of experience, and partly to indicate continuing commitment to the process of risk-management and safeguarding the organisation’s integrity.

2.2.4 Develop an open organisational culture where dealing with conflict of interest matters can be freely raised and discussed.

a) Involve employees, their representatives and other interested parties in the review of existing Conflict of Interest policy. Their opinion, as users, on the daily problems faced in the implementation of the Conflict of Interest policy can substantially contribute to the improvement of existing measures.

b) Consult on future prevention measures to bring a practical aspect into the policy-making process and to build a common understanding that is vital for the implementation of agreed policy.

c) Assist understanding by providing training for public officials to develop an understanding of the relevant general principles and specific rules, and to help them improve decision-making skills for practical application.
d) Provide support mechanisms for assisting managers in reviewing and improving their skills in identifying and resolving or managing conflicts in their day-to-day work.

2.3. Enforce the Conflict of Interest policy

2.3.1. Provide procedures for establishing a conflict of interest offence, and proportional consequences for non-compliance with Conflict of Interest policy including disciplinary sanctions.

a) Personal consequences -- Non-compliance with the organisation’s Conflict of Interest policy should generally be regarded as, at minimum, a disciplinary matter, while more serious breaches involving an actual conflict could result in sanctions for abuse of office, or prosecution for a corruption offence. Other sanctions may apply to the public official depending on the seriousness of the breach -- for example, a simple failure to register a relevant interest as required, compared with a more serious refusal to resolve an actual conflict of interest of which the public official is aware. Sanctions should be enforceable, to the extent of ultimately affecting the appointment or career of the public official involved where appropriate.

b) Management measures -- Positive management can provide effective complementary forms of redress for breaches of Conflict of Interest policy, and can be effective in dissuading those who would seek to benefit, directly or indirectly, from such breaches. Such measures could include retroactive cancellation of affected decisions and tainted contracts, and exclusion of the beneficiaries -- whether corporations, individuals, or associations, etc. -- from future processes. Such exclusion measures may operate for a given period of time, within given contract monetary limits, or for certain types of activities.

2.3.2. Develop monitoring mechanisms to detect breaches of policy and take into account any gain or benefit that resulted from the conflict.

a) Controls -- Ensure that management and internal controls as well as external oversight institutions -- such as independent auditors or an ombudsman -- work together to detect those who do not comply with required standards. Appropriate reporting for independent oversight institutions, and the publication of regular reports on the implementation of integrity-management arrangements and on the progress of any investigation, can play an important role in encouraging compliance with policy and discouraging abuse of the integrity-management process.

b) Complaint-handling -- Develop complaint mechanisms to deal with allegations of non-compliance, and devise effective measures to encourage their use. Provide clear rules and procedures for whistle-blowing, and take steps to ensure that those who report violations in compliance with stated rules are protected against reprisal, and that the complaint mechanisms themselves are not abused.

2.3.3. Co-ordinate prevention and enforcement measures and integrate them into a coherent institutional framework.

a) Policy Responsibility -- Identify a central function, not necessarily an independent organisation or government agency, as being responsible for the development and maintenance of the Conflict of Interest policy and procedures; this function could also evaluate and provide guidance on agencies’ management of Conflict of Interest policy and procedures, as well as selecting ‘champion’ organisations and disseminating their best practices.
b) Synergies -- Consider the combined use of complementary instruments to support related policy objectives; for example, disclosure systems that require regular declaration of financial and other interests can prevent potential conflicts of interest, help to detect illicit enrichment of public officials, and also help to deter corrupt practices.

c) Consistency of Laws -- Harmonise existing laws with the Conflict of Interest policy to remove conflicts and enable effective enforcement of the policy, including disclosure requirements and sanctions.

2.4. Initiate a new partnership with the business and non-profit sectors

19. Mechanisms for resolving conflict of interest situations must be kept up-to-date in the context of increasing co-operation between public organisations and the business and non-profit sectors. This is particularly crucial when appointing representatives to public bodies from other sectors to benefit from their particular experience, knowledge and involvement.

2.4.1. Create partnerships for integrity with the business and non-profit sectors by involving them in the elaboration and implementation of the Conflict of Interest policy for public officials.

a) Stakeholder Involvement -- Engage representatives of the business and non-profit sectors in reviewing the policy in order to have their views on the problems of implementation, and possible applications of the policy.

b) Consultation -- Ensure that proposed standards reflect actual public expectations by involving the business and non-profit sectors in the design of new integrity measures. Consultations could be used to identify or negotiate mutually acceptable solutions and encourage co-operation in the implementation process.

2.4.2. Anticipate potential conflict of interest situations when public organisations invite the involvement of persons representing businesses and the non-profit sector.

a) Potential problems -- Anticipate potential problems in order to maximise the benefit of involving representatives from other sectors in the work of public bodies -- such as boards and advisory bodies -- by identifying situations where the involvement of these representatives could result in a conflict of interest.

b) Safeguards -- Set up mechanisms that prevent confidential information, authority or influence gained through involvement in the activities of public bodies, from being used for personal gain or for the improper advantage of other businesses and non-profit organisations. Examples of potentially effective prevention mechanisms include the restriction of an individual’s access to particular information, formally recording the fact that a specific individual has had access to particular confidential information, and requiring the identification of relevant private and business interests of appointees from the business and non-profit sectors.

2.4.3. Raise awareness of the Conflict of Interest policy when dealing with other sectors, and include safeguards against potential conflict of interest situations when co-operating with the business and non-profit sectors.

a) Provide information -- Make other organisations aware of the potential consequences of non-compliance (which can include the termination or retrospective cancellation of a contract, recording and publicising a proven breach in a register, or prosecution for criminal offences such as corruption). Assist partner organisations, for example through providing contractors with training in compliance with and enforcement of the stated requirements.

b) Review together high-risk areas -- Potential conflict of interest areas should be identified, and appropriate preventive mechanisms developed, to protect both sides in a potential conflict situation. Ensure, for example, that partner organisations and the business sector accept that relevant private interests are to be disclosed transparently in the process of lobbying, and that breaches or attempted breaches of policy are to be brought to light so that they can be dealt with firmly and constructively. Similarly, ensure that partner organisations and the business sector are aware of the public organisation’s requirements regarding the handling of privileged “inside” information that is not available in the public domain, ensure that “commercial-in-confidence” information is adequately protected by verifiable processes, and ensure that decision-making procedures at all stages can be audited for integrity and justified.
