The OECD will publish its Economic Outlook No. 72, containing its latest twice-yearly economic forecasts, at 11.00 a.m. Paris time (10.00 a.m. GMT) on Thursday 21 November 2002. In addition to an analysis of near-term prospects for the world economy, this edition of the OECD’s Economic Outlook will contain a study of the contribution to fiscal sustainability of fiscal rules such as those incorporated in the Euro Area’s Stability and Growth Pact.

The OECD’s Chief Economist Jean-Philippe Cotis will present the Outlook at a news conference at OECD headquarters, 2 rue André Pascal, Paris 75016, at 11.00 a.m. on 21 November. Separate briefings will be held via videoconference the same day for journalists based in Tokyo, Berlin, Washington and Mexico City.

Practical information

The OECD’s Economic Outlook No. 72 will be available in English, French and German on the OECD’s password-protected website as of 11.00 a.m. Paris time on 21 November. Journalists will be allowed advance access, on request, to an electronic version of the Economic Outlook by e-mail under embargo four hours ahead of release time. Journalists in Asia/Pacific time zones will be allowed advance access 12 hours ahead of release time. The text will be sent by e-mail on request only.

Requests to receive the text by e-mail under embargo or to receive a password to access the website should be sent by e-mail to Nicole Le Vourch (nicole.levourch@oecd.org) in the OECD’s Media Relations Division. Printed copies of the Economic Outlook can be mailed to journalists, on request, on the day of publication.