TERRITORIAL ORGANISATION AND SUBNATIONAL GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBILITIES

MAIN FEATURES OF TERRITORIAL ORGANISATION. Argentina is a federal country divided into 23 States (Provincias) and one autonomous city (Buenos Aires). These autonomous governments are divided into 2218 autonomous municipalities (municipios), with an exception for the City of Buenos Aires which is divided into 15 communes (comunas) subdivided into 48 neighborhoods (barrios). As the Provinces have a political, judicial, administrative and financial autonomy, the scope of municipal autonomy is determined by the Province they depend on, before to be developed by each municipal government through the drafting of municipal charters. According to the 1994 Federal Constitution of Argentina, Provinces can vote their own constitutions and laws. They have the power to elect their authorities and organize their own administrations of justice. The National Constitution also establishes the principle of the autonomy of municipalities, which involves the election of their own authorities, Service Management and Public Works, the police authority, budget management and the ability to create taxes.

MAIN SUBNATIONAL GOVERNMENTS RESPONSIBILITIES. A delineation of powers between central government and the provincial states is based on the general principle that all provinces have the power not delegated by the Constitution to the federal state. We can distinguished exclusive competences, and shared competences between federal state and the provinces. The provinces may create regions for socio-economic development or bodies with powers in order to achieve goals, and may also, with the knowledge of the National Congress, sign international agreements, to the extent that they would not conflict with the foreign policy of the Nation nor would affect the powers delegated to the Federal Government or the public credit of the Nation. The provinces also manage the natural resources in their territories; and they may be responsible for secondary education. College education, health care, bus stations, housing and energy (electricity and gas) are competences shared between the federal government and the provinces. Municipalities have both exclusive and shared competences. Exclusive powers account waste management, roads construction, sewerage, markets and cemeteries, public transportation and public roads regulation. They also share with the State level primary education, primary health care, water and sewerage, regional roads construction and maintenance. Municipalities even de facto provide for school buildings maintenance and health care services.

Subnational governments in Argentina are playing a major role in the financing and implementation of public policies. Being one of the most decentralized country on the continent, Argentina has made its provinces a key level for services delivery, and the share of subnational level to general government spendings is still growing. SNGs were responsible for 44.7% of total public expenditure in 2013 and municipalities for 5.3%. The weight of current expenditure in subnational budget is particularly important (91%), which leaves few share for public investments.

Due to the large share of subnational funding dedicated to operating current expenditures, the allocation of the rest of expenditures is very limited. Key sectors of expenditures of provinces are education and culture, health and social assistance.

Argentina is one of the most decentralized countries in terms of borrowing decentralization. Under the Argentine constitution, provinces have the right to borrow Argentina up to 25% of their current revenue. Provincial debt is subjected to provincial legislatures, and municipal debt to municipal legislatures.
