Further notes

1. During 2008 and 2009, Austrian annual National Accounts were revised back to 1976. The most significant changes concerned employment and hours worked due to changes in the allocation of self-employed by industry. Upward revisions to GFCF were due to expenditure in software being moved from intermediate inputs to investment. Also, cars leased by private households are no longer private consumption expenditure but GFCF of the car rental enterprises. Estimates of the consumption of fixed capital have also been revised.

2. Financial intermediation services indirectly measured (FISIM - formerly known as Imputed bank service charges) are allocated (to intermediate inputs) by activity.

Further notes

1. In 2003, significant revisions to employment and hours worked by industry were made by Statistics Canada. The new series were constructed by aggregating figures produced at the provincial level. Previously, national estimates by industry were disaggregated to provinces, but this proved unsatisfactory. Also, the 2001 Census was used in conjunction with the Labour Force Survey to re-estimate the distribution of self-employed persons by industry and province. For hours worked, revised data from the Survey of employment, payroll and hours were incorporated and improved methods were used to estimate hours lost, most notably taking account of regional holidays.

Further notes

1. Estonia joined the eurozone on 1st January 2011 hence STAN data are now presented in euros with data converted from EEK using the irrevocable exchange rate of 15.6466 Kroon per Euro.

In general, to present data covering years prior to a country's accession to the EMU, data in 'old' national denomination are converted into 'national euro' by applying the irrevocable conversion rate established in the year of accession. This preserves the time profile of all historical national series. The recommended label for such data is '[year of accession] [ISO currency code] euro', in this case 2011 EEK euro. Note that since this method is conceptually equivalent to changing the denomination of the national currency, generating Euro area aggregates of data for periods prior to countries' accession years - on the basis of the fixed conversion rates - has little economic meaning. Further notes

1. INSEE present National Accounts by activity in tables with a hierarchy of 4 levels (D,E,F,G), based on their NAF classification, the most detailed (G) comprising of 115 activities.
2. Financial intermediation services indirectly measured (FISIM - formerly known as Imputed bank service charges) are allocated (to intermediate inputs) by activity, and hence deducted from Value added by activity.
3. Official INSEE National Accounts by activity (F-level) are now (in 2008) available for years prior to 1978. Previously, estimates were required for these activities in STAN for 1970-77 - differences in data for these years compared with last version of STAN for France (2007) will therefore be apparent. Also, INSEE have made revisions to data for intermediate inputs, value added (and its components) up to and including 1996.

Further notes

1. Latest ONS Supply-Use tables, 2004-2007, cover a slightly reduced set of industries compared with earlier SUTs (1992-2004). Investment flow matrices, published with the earlier Input-Output related material and providing detailed GFCF for 1992-2004, are not yet available with the revised versions. See links below:

Archived SUTs: www.statistics.gov.uk/about/methodology_by_theme/inputoutput/archive_data.asp

2. Employment and employee jobs (EMPN and EMPE) in STAN differ from the aggregates published in the ONS Blue Book (Table 2.5) which are figures as at June each year (not seasonally adjusted) rather than annual averages of seasonally adjusted quarterly series. Detailed UK employee jobs estimated with GB data. Total employment includes Her Majesty's Forces (HMF) and Government Sponsored Trainees (GSTs) present in ISIC 75 and totals - not currently included in EMPE. Level of detail for estimates of EMPN constrained by availability of self-employed data.

3. UK Value Added volumes (VALK) for mining, manufacturing and utilities are based on indices of production (IOPs). For other activities, such as services, the "Output index" is derived by deflating estimates of turnover coming from a range of ONS enquiries. Volumes for aggregate industries are calculated using annually re-weighted chained Laspeyres methodology (i.e. current price value added data for the previous year are used as weights). To preserve historical growth rates, earlier series (based on previous base years) have been linked for all activities, including aggregates.

VALK, GFCK	Annually re-weighted chained Laspeyres

Industries

Other Community and Personal Services (ISIC 90_93) includes Private households with employed persons (ISIC 95)

Further notes

1. HSCO have made revisions to Number Engaged (EMPN) and Employees (EMPE) at a 2-digit level of ISIC/NACE detail (A60), 1995-2009, mainly reflecting a move towards the 'domestic concept' of employment and thus, for example, including foreign seasonal workers - so that sectors such as Agriculture show a significant upward revisions. Equivalent revisions to hours worked data have, for the moment, only been made at an aggregate (A6) industry level so that detail for hours worked by number engaged (HRSN) have been estimated by the STAN team.

2. Prior to 2009, HSCO supplied annual SNA data from 2000 and estimates for 1995-1999 in STAN were based on an earlier vintage of Supply Use tables (base95). In 2009, HCSO completed a long process of methodological improvements to their system of National Accounts which included 'backcasting' data to 1995 (see document below). Consequently, prior to 2000, some differences will be apparent compared to earlier (pre-2010) versions of STAN for Hungary.

Further notes

1. CSO Ireland publish estimates of production (gross output) and value added, 2002-2007, for 2-digit NACE activities (A60) but these "estimates of GDP using the Output Method should be considered to be experimental". To estimate Production (gross output) in STAN we have applied the Production / Value Added ratios from this dataset to the latest official SNA Value Added and extended the series with production data coming from Structural Business Statistics (SBS)

Further notes

1. STAN tables are based on the latest SNA93 National Accounts data, with a reference year of 2000. Earlier vintages of SNA data were used to generate estimates for earlier years - including old SNA68 data, available for 1970-1998 with a base year of 1990. Information from I-O tables and the 2010 edition of the JIP database were used to provide estimates for detailed activities not present in SNA93 tables - particularly for services. Results from METI's annual manufacturing census (2007-08 results in JSIC 2007; 2002-07 in JSIC 2002; and 1985-2003 in JSIC 1993) were used to estimate additional detail for manufactures for current price output and employment measures.

2. The Japan Industrial Productivity (JIP) Database 2010, compiled in a collaboration between the Research Institute of Economy, Trade and Industry (RIETI) and Hitotsubashi University, was used for certain measures as an input source into STAN estimation procedures with the kind permission of the authors: Professor Kyoji Fukao et al. The database covers 107 economic activities for the period 1970-2007 and can be downloaded from:

www.rieti.go.jp/en/database/JIP2010/index.html

3. Investment and Capital Stock tables by activity are not yet available from official SNA93 sources.

Further notes

1. The Bank of Korea made significant revisions to National Accounts throughout 2009. Volumes are now aggregated using annually re-weighted chained Laspeyres methodology with a national reference year of 2005 (rather than 2000 fixed base Laspeyres). Also, new industry breakdown was introduced based on 9th revision of Korean SIC which includes an Information sector similar to those in NAICS and ISIC Rev.4. Changes also reflect the results of the 2008 Census on Establishments (which used KSIC 9) and improvements in inter-industry relation tables and estimation methodologies.

2. Production, Value Added, Labour Costs and other VA components provided by Bank of Korea. Aggregate employment data originate from the Korean Statistical Office (namely the Economically Active Population Survey). Estimates of employment (EMPN and EMPE) for detailed manufacturing activities are based on monthly business survey data.

Further notes

1. INEGI substantially revised its National Accounts in 2008 publishing new results from 2003 onwards. The revisions were made in order to better conform to recommendations of SNA93, make use of a richer set of basic statistics coming from 2004 economic census, ensure consistency with new 2003 benchmark Input-Output tables and to introduce NAICS 2002 as the industry classification (previously CMAP). More details in the link below (in Spanish). The revision resulted in major changes to the industry composition of value added (and other measures). For example, during the period 1995-2004, Oil and gas extraction (ISIC 11) previously accounted for about 1% of total value added, now for 2004 it accounts for 6.6% rising to 9.3% in 2008. This is due to a new treatment of the extraction rights of PEMEX (the state-owned petroleum company) – they are now treated as “other taxes on production” of the activity “Oil and Gas extraction” (NAICS 211) whereas previously, they were treated as “taxes on products” and were recorded as such in the “tax less subsidies on products” item in the aggregate “GDP (output approach)” account. For 2004, this revision shifted about 360 billion pesos (or 4.2% of total GDP) to ISIC 11 Value Added. Also, the value added share for “Community, Social and Personal Services” (ISIC 75-99) has dropped from 17-20% for 1995-2004 before the revision to about 13.5% for 2004, 12.7% by 2008.
