About Norden

The Nordic co-operation is one of the world's most extensive forms of regional collaboration, involving Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, the Faroe Islands, Greenland, and Åland.

These countries together form the Nordic region – Norden – which comprises approximately 26 million people. Combined the GDPs of the countries make the region's economy the 12th largest in the world.

Find more facts about the Nordic region and countries at www.norden.org/facts

The parliamentary co-operation in the region began in 1952 and was expanded in 1971 with the body for intergovernmental co-operation, the Nordic Council of Ministers.

The Nordic co-operation has firm traditions in politics, the economy, and culture. It plays an important role in European and international collaboration, and aims at creating a strong Nordic community in a strong Europe.

The Nordic co-operation seeks to safeguard Nordic and regional interests and principles in the global community. Common Nordic values help the region solidify its position as one of the world's most innovative and competitive.

Norden iLibrary key publications

New Policies to Promote Youth Inclusion: Accommodation of diversity in the Nordic Welfare States

This book examines changes over time among young adults who have experienced particular difficulties in achieving and retaining paid work in the ordinary labour market: youth with family background from non-Nordic countries and youth with disabilities in the Nordic countries. The book identifies processes and mechanisms enabling or preventing the labour market prospects of these two youth groups, and focuses on policy measures aiming at tackling demand-side barriers to their employment.

A Nordic textile strategy: Part II: A proposal for increased collection, sorting, reuse and recycling of textiles

The proposed strategy for increased reuse and recycling of textiles provides a starting point for the work towards a more sustainable textile and fashion sector in the Nordic region. It is focused on the increased collection, sorting, reuse and recycling in the region and thereby provides one part of the sustainability puzzle in the sector. The proposed strategy includes incentives, policies and measures needed at local, regional, national and Nordic levels to ensure successful implementation.

Future Opportunities for Bioeconomy: Focus on the West Nordic Region

This book provides an overview of bioresources in the West Nordic region focusing on Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Greenland, their utilisation and future opportunities based on green growth. The book provides a good basis for strategic identification of beneficial projects in the region.

Food Redistribution in the Nordic Region: Experiences and results from a pilot study

This book has a focus on waste prevention through redistribution of food to low-income people via charity organisations. Food redistribution can go via national food banks and via direct redistribution, often at a local level. Food banks in the Nordic region redistributed about 1.5 million meals in 2013, and local charity organisations probably 2-3 times more. The demand and potential for redistribution is probably much higher than at present, and the book points out strategies and measures how food banks can contribute to future development.

Arctic Social Indicators

Arctic Social Indicators II (ASI-II) is a follow-up activity to ASI-I (2010) and the first Arctic Human Development Report (AHDR, 2004). The objective of ASI (2010) was to develop a small set of Arctic-specific social indicators that collectively would facilitate the tracking and monitoring of change in human development in the Arctic. ASI indicators were developed for six domains that Arctic residents considered prominent aspects of human development: Health and Population; Material Wellbeing; Education; Cultural Wellbeing; Contact with Nature; and Fate Control.
