This year, the OECD is organising a pilot Global Business Integrity Roundtable. If successful, the Roundtable will become a regular forum for exchange of experience, promotion of good practices, and implementing projects advancing business integrity globally, with the support of the OECD and its partners the public and the private sector. The pilot will include one Global Roundtable during the GACIF and several Thematic and Regional Roundtables that will take place throughout the spring season, as follows:

- Global Roundtable: business integrity trends and standards, compliance in the post-covid world (24 March)
- Regional Roundtables: Asia and the Pacific (31 March), Eastern Europe and Central Asia (12 May), Africa (14 April)
- Thematic Roundtables: Non-judicial remedies for combatting solicitation and bribery (April, TBC) and Incentives for compliance (7 April, May)

Part One: Business Integrity Trends and Standards

The adoption and enforcement of national anti-corruption laws, such as the US FCPA, UK Anti-Bribery Act, France’s Sapin II, assisted by the ongoing implementation of the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention through monitoring by the OECD Working Group on Bribery, was a key driving force for the rapid growth of anti-corruption compliance systems in companies within OECD jurisdictions and beyond. Some governments also supplemented enforcement by other efforts, such as codifying rules on compliance, creating reporting channels and remedies, as well as administrative reforms to simplify interactions with officials. As documented by BIAC and others, business integrity standards are evolving rapidly as a part of broader standards on responsible business conduct concerning anti-corruption, human rights, and the environment. While some of these standards are becoming mandatory, many governments around the world have not developed clear policies on business integrity, for instance, by ensuring strong enforcement or providing incentives. Even in those countries, compliance by companies is also growing in response to market signals, such as due diligence and supply chain responsibility, and the private sector is demanding more integrity from the governments.

Introduction: Olga Savran, OECD Anti-Corruption Division
Opening remarks: Jeffrey Schagenhauf, OECD Deputy Secretary-General

Moderator: Nicola Bonucci, Partner, Paul Hastings LLP; Member, B20 Task Force on Integrity and Compliance

Discussion leads:

- David Last, Principal Assistant Chief, FCPA Unit, Department of Justice, USA
- Carolina Echevarria, Regional Manager Latin America & Coordinator Trainings and Ariadne Souza, Network Manager Southern Cone for Alliance of Integrity for Latin America
- Willem Punt, Anti-Bribery and Corruption Lead, ANZ Bank; Steering Committee Member, Bribery Prevention Network, Australia
- Angela Joo-Hyun Kang, Founder and President, Global Competiveness Empowerment Forum, South Korea
- Sam Eastwood, Partner, Mayer Brown LLP
- Florence Dennis, Division Manager, Integrity and Prevention, Office of Integrity and Anti Corruption, African Development Bank

13.15 (CET) Part Two: Catalysing Compliance in the Post COVID-19 World

The COVID-19 crisis has exposed companies to increased risks and compliance challenges. Furthermore, in the face of changing regulatory expectations, combined with new ways of working. Compliance Officers are learning to navigate a new operating environment and business landscape. This second session of the OECD Business Integrity Roundtable will provide an opportunity for the private sector, including members of the Trust in Business Network, operating in ethics and compliance functions to discuss what concrete programs, corporate policies, incentives, and collective actions can be developed to promote cultures of integrity for a more resilient future. This session will focus on the practical implementation of these issues and the role of International Organisations, including the OECD, in promoting drivers, incentives, and enforcement of trusted solutions.

Moderator: Mathilde Mesnard, OECD Deputy Director for Financial and Enterprise Affairs

Discussion leads:

- Gemma Aiolfi, Head of Compliance, Corporate Governance, and Collective Action at Basel Institute on Governance
- Samantha Thomson, M&A Corporate Lead, Anglo American
- Che Sidanius, Global Head of Financial Crime & Industry Affairs, Refinitiv
- Bahare Heywood, Chief Risk and Compliance Officer, Clifford Chance
- Laurie Waddy, Chief Compliance Officer, Ericsson

Closing remarks: Drago Kos, Chair of the OECD Working Group on Bribery