GENERAL INFORMATION

ABOUT MEXICO CITY

Weather Conditions: Mexico City is located in the high central plateau of Mexico and because of its altitude (7350 ft.) the city enjoys a relatively mild climate throughout the year. Summer and winter are generally mild. Throughout the year, evenings can be cold enough to need a light jacket or sweater, so be prepared. Spring weather is a transitional period between the cold winter and the warm summer, characterized by a gradual rise in temperatures. It is generally a mild and changeable season, during which sunny days may alternate with rainy ones. The average temperature for May will be of 28°C with a minimum of 12°C.

Electricity: In Mexico, the electrical voltage is generally 110 volts and of 60 cycles with American-type outlets.

Money Exchange: Our official currency is the Mexican peso. There are bills of twenty, fifty, one hundred, two hundred, five hundred and one thousand pesos. As a reference we inform that the exchange rate for January 26, 2026 is:

U.S. 1 =	Buy	$16.77 Mexican pesos
	Sale	$17.71 Mexican pesos
Euro 1 =	Buy	$20.57 Mexican pesos
	Sale	$20.57 Mexican pesos

Further, the use of credit cards is widespread, e.g., Visa, Master Card, American Express. Inside the Multilateral Tax Centre facilities, you will find ATM machines which are also available in most public places.

Finally, it is important to mention that due to official regulations the maximum amount of USD that it is allowed to change per day in Mexico is $300 USD, such amount must not exceed $1,500 USD per month. Since the daily restriction applies to each bank branch individually, we suggest you to get pesos in the airport, from different branches, or pay as much as you can with your debit or credit card.

Tips: In Mexico, tips are never included in restaurant. It is customary to leave a 10% or 15% as tip (depending on the quality of the service received). We do not usually tip taxi drivers.

Taxes: All purchases and services are subject to VAT at a 16% rate. The tax on the provision of accommodation services is 3.5%.

The airport duty at Benito Juárez International Airport of Mexico City is USD 31.03 for each domestic flight and the international duty is USD $58.92; at Felipe Angeles International Airport is USD $15.40 for each domestic flight and the international duty is USD $26.62. In some domestic flights an “insurance cost” must be paid directly amounting around USD $6.50.

VAT Refund: Foreign tourists leaving Mexico through air or sea have the possibility of obtaining a VAT refund of merchandise acquired in national territory before authorized offices which may be found in Mexico's City International Airport and certain ports. In order to obtain such refund, they should file (1) the duly completed refund form, (2) the invoice proving the acquisition of the merchandise, (3) the entry immigration form duly stamped, (4) the relevant merchandise, (5) original passport, and (6) the boarding pass or document that proves the departure of the foreign tourist from national territory.
