

The value-added of an SDG-based results approach to development co-operation

Summary pointers from workshop discussions on 3 February 2016

- Benefitting from the SDGs' focus on outcomes
- Pursuing selected SDG targets as results of development co-operation
 - Operationalizing Agenda 2030, without deprioritizing any SDGs
 - Exploiting the power of aggregated evidence in communication
 - Building on selected SDG progress data from country level
 - Adding value with results perspectives on effective co-operation
 - Linking ODA, TOSSD and SDGs for objectives and results
- Feeding into country results frameworks of developing countries and corporate results reporting of providers
 - Reflecting common results aspirations, cost-effectively
 - Raising results debate to outcomes and sustainability
 - Adding no new reporting requirements or markers...

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development

Development policies and priorities of PROVIDERS of development cooperation: Bilateral, multilateral, civil society, etc.

Corporate results info and reporting for policy-making, planning, accountability, quality-assurance, communication

Partnership dialogues in existing global and regional fora: UNO, GPEDC, etc.

Partnership dialogues and "aid coordination" in developing countries

Country results frameworks: National strategies, plans and annual budgets of developing countries

Development policies and priorities of developing country PARTNERS of development cooperation

Progress towards the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development:
Country-level reporting on 17 SDGs and 169 targets

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development

Progress towards the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development:
Country-level reporting on 17 SDGs and 169 targets

The possible next steps

1. Providers consider how their goals and results frameworks align with SDG outcome targets, and decide on the use of global SDG indicators for their own portfolio
2. Partners advise how they use SDG outcome targets and indicators in their country results frameworks
3. The OECD/DCD summarises the match between SDG outcome targets; provider and partner priorities; and the global indicators used
4. In consultation with the UN, other providers and partners, the DAC/DCD results community develops an SDG-based results approach to development co-operation
5. The DAC considers how to promote a common, SDG-based results approach to development co-operation

Questions for the Tour-de-Table

1. How can you as a development co-operation provider or partner benefit from regular information on e.g. 20 SDG outcome targets (at least 1 per SDG), linked to development co-operation?
2. How can this attempt to link development co-operation to the 2030 Agenda be used in your domestic thinking on
 - a) SDG – development policy links?
 - b) corporate results frameworks?
3. What are your suggestions on the process towards focusing on an operational and representative set of SDG outcome targets linked to development co-operation?
4. How do you wish to take part?