Global Apprenticeships Network (GAN)
Basic Commitments on Skills Development in LEM Declaration

• We commit to increasing our efforts to build skills for work and life and to strengthening the link between education and employment. (Ankara Declaration, Article 10)

• We are committed to developing, strong partnerships with social partners and relevant stakeholders to ensure that all young people learn the basic skills needed to help their transition from school to the labour market. (Ankara Declaration, Article 11)
Labour Mobility - I

- 232 million migrants in 2015
- 405 million migrants in 2050
Labour Mobility – II

More than half of the world’s migrants reside in the G20 countries.

Migrants make important contributions to the economies of both destination and origin countries.

In order to make the most out of migration flows for the benefit of all, a number of key challenges should be addressed.
Labour Mobility - III

International labour mobility brings both challenges and opportunities. When managed carefully, effectively and in a fair manner, it has the potential to make an important contribution to economic growth. It may also help address current and future labour force imbalances and skills needs. Further work is needed to explore the complexity of these issues, including through sharing good practices.
