

Table of contents

Executive summary	11
Chapter 1. Cross-border education: an overview	17
1.1. What is cross-border education?	19
1.2. The growth of cross-border education	20
1.2.1. International student mobility	20
1.2.2. Programme and institution mobility	21
1.3. The new face of cross-border education provision	23
1.4. Plurality of drivers and rationales.	25
1.4.1. Policy rationales.	25
1.4.2. Institutional rationales.	28
1.4.3. Student rationales	29
1.5. Trade as a new viewpoint on cross-border education	31
1.5.1. An international market of more than USD 30 billion	31
1.5.2. Cross-border education and the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS).	33
Notes	37
References	38
Chapter 2. Cross-border post-secondary education in North America	39
2.1. Historical overview – framing factors.	41
2.1.1. Post-secondary education system.	41
2.1.2. Evolution of internationalisation and cross-border education.	44
2.1.3. Regional analysis	48
2.2. Key developments	49
2.2.1. Major cross-border activities and developments	50
2.2.2. Regional analysis	67
2.3. Rationales, policy and national actors	69
2.3.1. Rationales and policies.	70
2.3.2. Government departments and agencies	74
2.3.3. Non-governmental organisations.	77
2.3.4. Regional analysis	80
2.4. Trends, issues, challenges	81
2.4.1. Limited regional focus and activities	82
2.4.2. Student mobility	82
2.4.3. The potential of ICT.	83
2.4.4. Quality assurance.	83
2.4.5. The growth of the for-profit sector	83
2.4.6. Rationales	84
2.4.7. Brain-drain.	84
References	85

Chapter 3. Cross-border post-secondary education in Europe.	87
3.1. Historical overview	89
3.1.1. The post-World War II period: closed national systems	89
3.1.2. The 1980s-1990s: European co-operation programmes	91
3.1.3. The end of the millennium: the Sorbonne and Bologna declarations	94
3.1.4. The turn of the millennium: the Lisbon Summit	97
3.2. Policies and rationales	99
3.2.1. Shifting rationales	99
3.2.2. The growing economic orientation	99
3.2.3. The pressure from Anglo-Saxon countries	102
3.2.4. Competition and co-operation	102
3.2.5. Market liberalisation: EU and GATS	104
3.2.6. International competition and intergovernmental co-operation	104
3.3. Policy instruments	105
3.3.1. The free mobility of students and professionals	105
3.3.2. Recognition of professional qualifications	106
3.3.3. The free movement of services	107
3.3.4. Quality assurance	108
3.3.5. ERASMUS Mundus	110
3.3.6. Other instruments: international marketing	111
3.4. Key developments in activities	114
3.4.1. The size and growth of cross-border education in Europe	114
3.4.2. The importance of adult and vocational education	126
3.5. Nature of actors and partnerships	127
3.5.1. The nature of actors	127
3.5.2. The nature of partnerships	127
3.6. Opportunities, challenges, issues	129
Notes	131
References	132
Chapter 4. Cross-border post-secondary education in the Asia-Pacific region	137
4.1. Historical and geographical overview	138
4.1.1. Introduction	138
4.1.2. The Asia-Pacific region	139
4.1.3. Educational and technological capacity	142
4.1.4. Educational typology of the Asia-Pacific nations	146
4.1.5. The Asia-Pacific region in global context	148
4.2. Policies and rationales	155
4.2.1. Student demand for cross-border education	156
4.2.2. Government policies and strategies	157
4.2.3. Educational institutions	159
4.2.4. Global rationales	160
4.3. Policy instruments	161
4.3.1. Meeting capacity-building objectives	161
4.3.2. Building national capacity	162
4.3.3. National capacity and foreign providers	164
4.3.4. Brain drain, brain gain and brain exchange	165
4.3.5. Cross-border research collaboration and higher education capacity building	165
4.3.6. Meeting academic, political, cultural and socio-economic objectives	166
4.3.7. Meeting trade objectives	168
4.4. Key developments	170
4.4.1. Student exchange	170

4.4.2. Consumption abroad: foreign students	172
4.4.3. Programme and institution mobility (PIM)	178
4.4.4. Distance education/online PIM	182
4.4.5. Regulation of cross-border education.	189
4.5. Actors and partnerships	193
4.5.1. Actors	193
4.5.2. Partnerships	193
4.6. Opportunities and challenges	196
4.6.1. Opportunities	196
4.6.2. Challenges	197
Notes	198
References	200
Chapter 5. Key developments and policy rationales in cross-border post-secondary education.	205
5.1. Key developments in cross-border educational activities	206
5.1.1. Student mobility: patterns and growth.	206
5.1.2. Programme and institution mobility	215
5.2. Rationales, actors and policy instruments	220
5.2.1. The mutual understanding approach to cross-border education	221
5.2.2. The skilled migration approach to cross-border education	223
5.2.3. The revenue-generating approach to cross-border education	225
5.2.4. The capacity building approach to cross-border education	229
5.3. Conclusion.	231
Notes	233
References	234
Chapter 6. Implications of recent developments for access and equity, cost and funding, quality and capacity building	237
6.1. Access and equity.	239
6.1.1. Expanding access to post-secondary education through cross-border provision	239
6.1.2. Equity in participation to cross-border student mobility	241
6.1.3. Does cross-border student mobility restrict domestic access to tertiary education?	246
6.2. Cross-border post-secondary education: financing and cost effects	249
6.2.1. Who finances student cross-border mobility?	250
6.2.2. Indirect subsidies to cross-border post-secondary education	251
6.2.3. Generating income for universities through cross-border post-secondary education: a mental revolution	253
6.2.4. New forms of cross-border post-secondary education: funding and cost	257
6.3. The GATS negotiations and its possible impact on public funding and subsidies.	258
6.3.1. Privatisation, liberalisation, regulation and the GATS	259
6.3.2. Public funding and subsidies under the GATS	262
6.4. Cross-border post-secondary education and quality of education	264
6.4.1. Quality as a common concern in sending and receiving countries	265
6.4.2. Quality issues in cross-border post-secondary education	266
6.4.3. Does cross-border post-secondary education affect the quality of domestic post-secondary education?	269
6.4.4. Quality assurance, recognition of qualifications and trade agreements	272
6.4.5. The need for transparent information and international initiatives in quality assurance	274

6.5. Building capacity for post-secondary education through cross-border post-secondary education: development issues	276
6.5.1. Cross-border mobility of students and skilled labour migration: brain exchange, brain drain, brain gain	276
6.5.2. Cross-border post-secondary education: a possible solution to brain drain and a catalyst for capacity building.	281
6.5.3. Trade and aid: post-secondary education capacity building	284
6.6. Summary and policy challenges	287
6.6.1. Access and equity.	287
6.6.2. Financing and cost	288
6.6.3. Quality and recognition	289
6.6.4. Using cross-border post-secondary education to build capacity.	290
6.6.5. Impact of the GATS on public funding and quality regulation	291
6.6.6. Policy coherence	292
Notes	292
References	294
Annex A. A basic guide to the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS)	297
Annex B. Negotiating proposals, requests and offers under GATS: what has happened on education services? (May 2004).	304
Annex C. Definitions and technical notes on the data	308
Data tables	312
List of tables
1.1. Types of cross-border education activities	20
1.2. Level of tuition fees in public universities for international students compared to domestic students	26
1.3. Export earnings from foreign students, 1989, 1997 and 2001.	32
1.4. Import payments by national students studying abroad, 1989, 1997 and 2001.	32
1.5. Attribution of the main modes of international supply of educational services.	35
2.1. International students in the United States	51
2.2. Leading places of origin of international students in the United States	52
2.3. Duration of US study abroad, 1986-2002	53
2.4. Numbers of international students in Canada, by source country.	58
2.5. International students in Canada by post-secondary education level and source country, 2001	59
2.6. Canadian students taking tertiary education outside of Canada, 2000/01	60
2.7. General information on academic programmes abroad, Canada, 1999	61
2.8. Geographic distribution of institutional agreements with Mexico.	63
2.9. Overall ranking of internationalisation rationales by three sectors, Canada	72
2.10. Rationales for specific aspects of internationalisation, Canada	73
3.1. ERASMUS student mobility: actual numbers of students sent and hosted by country	91
3.2. Foreign students by host country, 1995-2001.	92
3.3. Share of top seven receiving countries, 2001.	111
3.4. Index of foreign students per domestic student abroad in tertiary education, 2001	116
3.5. Teacher mobility under SOCRATES by sending country, 1999/2000	124
4.1. Asia-Pacific countries: population, economy and public investment in education	141
4.2. Major languages used in the Asia-Pacific countries, 1999-2000	142
4.3. Asia-Pacific countries: participation in secondary education	143
4.4. Participation in upper secondary and tertiary education, selected Asia-Pacific countries as compared to OECD mean, 2000	144
4.5. Spending on education, selected Asia-Pacific countries compared to OECD mean, 1999.	145

4.6. Public/private split of spending on tertiary education institutions and household expenditure on tertiary education, selected Asia-Pacific countries compared to the OECD mean, 1999	146
4.7. An Asia-Pacific regional typology of cross-border education.	147
4.8. Mega-cities, world and the Asia-Pacific region, 2000 and 2015.	149
4.9. Real GDP growth in China, 1985-2001 (percentage over previous year)	149
4.10. Foreign tertiary students from the Asia-Pacific region studying in all OECD countries and in the United States, 2001	150
4.11. Foreign students from Asia-Pacific entering tertiary education in OECD countries, by country of study, 2001.	151
4.12. Foreign students enrolled in selected Asia-Pacific countries, by origin, 2001.	154
4.13. Number of foreign students compared to number of domestic students abroad, selected nations in the Asia-Pacific region compared to OECD, 2001	155
4.14. Exchange students entering and leaving Australia, 1990/2001	171
4.15. Reasons for choosing to study abroad, survey of 1 000 students from ten Asian countries	172
4.16. Comparative cost of foreign study in the English language countries, master of business, 2001	173
4.17. Growth of international student enrolments in Australia, 1994-2001	174
4.18. Australian educational exports: number of international student enrolments by sector of education and national origin, 2001	175
4.19. Foreign student enrolments by level and field of study.	176
4.20. ICT networking potential, Asia-Pacific countries, 2000-02	184
4.21. ICT industry and capacity in OECD countries, in the Asia-Pacific region and in Anglophone countries.	185
5.1. Number of tertiary foreign students in OECD countries from the 30 top sending countries (2001)	210
5.2. Percentage of foreign students enrolled in OECD countries by region, 1998 and 2001	211
5.3. English-speaking countries' shares of foreign tertiary students by origin, 1998 and 2001	211
5.4. International students' choice of field study compared with domestic students' choice of field study (1999)	213
6.1. Entry rates to tertiary education and expected years in tertiary education, 2001	240
6.2. Female participation in foreign and domestic enrolments at tertiary level, 2001	242
6.3. Distribution of public and private sources of funds for educational institutions (1995, 2000)	255
6.4. Foreign-born US scientists and engineers, by field and level of highest degree, 1999	280
6.5. Percentage of temporary residents receiving PhDs in Science and Engineering in the United States in 1996 who were in the United States, 1997-2001.	281
6.6. Percentage of foreign students receiving PhDs in 1996 who were in the United States, 1997-2001, by field and visa type	282
6.7. Official Development Assistance (ODA) to post-secondary education and education (1995, 2001)	286

List of figures

1.1. Direct expenditure of students' households on tertiary educational institutions, 1999	27
1.2. Index of foreign students per domestic student abroad in tertiary education by OECD country, 1998 and 2001	33
2.1. Number of US study abroad students.	53
2.2. Number of university development projects in Canada, 1985-99	56
2.3. Geographical distribution of university development projects in Canada	56
2.4. University international exchange agreements with Canada	57

2.5. Agreements by world region, 1990, 1995, 1999	57
2.6. Types of agreements in Canada	58
2.7. Regions/countries of interest for Canadian students	60
3.1. Percentage of foreign students in Europe by continent of origin, 2001	93
3.2. Growth in number of foreign students in Europe by continent of origin, 1995-2001	115
5.1. Number of foreign tertiary students in OECD countries, by host country, 2001	207
5.2. Increase of foreign tertiary students in OECD countries, 1980-2001.	208
5.3. Percentage of foreign students as a percentage of all (foreign and domestic) students, 1998, 2001	209
5.4. Four approaches to cross-border post-secondary education.	232
6.1. Highly-skilled worker visas in Japan, entries.	278