

Mr. Stéphane Jacobzone

Head of Unit, Evidence, Monitoring and Policy Evaluation, OECD

Mr. Jacobzone is currently leading work on evidence, policy monitoring and evaluation. He oversaw a report on policy evaluation covering over 42 countries, developing standards of evidence, and capacity for strengthening evidence informed policy making. He has been involved in a range of public governance activities, including policy advisory systems and the evidence to decision making interface, risk governance, disaster risk management and resilience, as well as strategic agility, public sector innovation, digital government, public employment and illicit trade. Mr. Jacobzone co-ordinated the OECD Public Governance Committee from 2010 until 2018, and organized Public Governance Ministerial Meetings in Venice in 2010 and Helsinki in 2015. He previously worked on the governance of regulatory oversight and the institutional design for economic regulators, and conducted multidisciplinary reviews of regulatory reform in a dozen countries. He started to work on health, ageing and social policy at the OECD, including public finance implications of ageing, pharmaceutical policy, health and long term care. He started his career at the French Treasury and at the CREST-INSEE research Centre focusing on health economics and welfare issues, as well as public economics. Mr. Jacobzone is a former alumnus of the Ecole Polytechnique and ENSAE (French National Academy for Statistics and Economics). He taught at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques, Ecole Nationale d'Administration. He has been active with the US National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) in the areas of health and ageing, and is the author of over 22 books and reports, and 40 academic articles.
