

Lola Vallejo

Lola Vallejo leads the OECD work on policies for a climate-resilient infrastructure in OECD countries. She previously assessed the UK's infrastructure resilience for the Committee on Climate Change, an independent body advising the Government on tackling and preparing for climate change. She also coordinated research on global decarbonisation pathways at Imperial College London and climate finance in Paris. Lola holds an Msc in Environmental Technology from Imperial College and an Msc in International Affairs from Sciences-Po Paris.